Gen. Marshall Opposes Ban on Draft of Fathers

SAYS CUT NOW WOULD HAMPER U. S. OFFENSIVE

Failure To Meet Draft Quotas Would Hurt Army, He Declares.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—Gen. George C. Marshall warned congress today against "dimming the power" of great allied offensives by forbidding the drafting of fathers.

"We are on the offensive now," the chief of staff said, "it would be unfortunate to do anything that would dim the power of that offensive."

"We have, undoubtedly, very heavy fighting in front of us."

Testifying before the senate and house military committees on the Wheeler bill to postpone induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers until Jan. 1, Marshall apologized for expressing myself rather vigorously."

The general said that whether Army quotas could be met without drafting fathers heretofore deferred was a question "for the manpower people," but he told Senator Austin (R-Vt) that failure to obtain the quotas "probably would force us to emasculate some of our units."

"It would emasculate the tail end of our army and put us in a serious position," Marshall added.

Even a postponment of such a draft by three months, the chief of staff said, would seriously interfere with the army's program.

"While you've got the other fellow on the run, the more you do to cut him down before he regains his balance, the better it is," Marshall testified.

At Peak of Training

Asserting the American armed forces have reached their peak of training and are poised for aggressive development all over the world, the chief of staff said he was puzzled "by the reaction at this time."

It seems to him, Marshall said, that if congress stepped in to interrupt the flow of men through selective service, "all we can do is reduce our program and change our strategy."

"Certainly," Marshall testified, "if you cut us now, we suffer a much greater loss than we anticipate from the Germans and the Japs."

With Admiral Ernest J. King, commander of the fleet, sitting beside him, Marshall testified before a jammed hearing room on a bill by Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) to postpone induction of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers until after Jan. 1. In his preliminary remarks Marshall noted that Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, deputy chief of staff, had given the committee many details in opposition to the proposal in previous testimony.

Marshall said that the Army plans to activate soon between 430 and 440 new battalions, adding that four divisions now had only 1,500 men each and needed an additional 14,000 each.

The general added that 50,000 special troops, including engineers, mechanics and signal corps men, were being shipped to England this month, along with 500 bomber crews. These latter, he said, were not to increase the weight of bomber participation but to maintain the operation of bombers already there.

Now Ready for Action

For the first time in history, Marshall said, trained men are on hand for deployment on all of the fronts of the world.

"We are just getting ready for our deployment," he testified, adding that operative personnel had been trained and placed; that the basic establishment was a going concern, and that now manpower had become largely a matter of maintenance and replacements of casualties and other losses.

Our shipping can now be turned to the deployment of our air and army for the first time in history," he said.

Marshall said it was necessary to keep stand-by troops on hand in this country to meet the de-

Wyandot Co. Soldier Gets Hero's Award

Cpl. Ekleberry, son of Fred Ekleberry, a Nevada poultry dealer, has not written to his relatives at Nevada since the rescue took place, and so far they have only brief news accounts of the incident. They said the two soldiers were walking along the beach when they were attracted by screams of a girl in the water, about 75 feet off shore.

They plunged in to rescue her, brought her to shore and were obliged to use artificial respiration methods for some time before reviving her. Had it not been for their prompt and efficient action, the girl's life would have been lost, news accounts said.

Cpl. Ekleberry attended Nevada High school, was in CCC camps several years and worked for a time in an Upper Sandusky restaurant. He has been in military service nearly three years. He is a coast artilleryman.

Ohio's New Driver Responsibility Law Becomes Effective

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 20 — Irresponsible Ohio motorists may lose their driving rights for five years under a new state law which went into effect today, and "numbers" racketeers face prison sentences under another new statute effective tomorrow.

Motorists now must settle any money judgement obtained against them in connection with automobile accidents or lose their driving rights for five years or until the judgement is satisfied. Financial responsibility may be established by posting $11,000 bond or by obtaining liability for that amount.

REDS DRIVING ON SMOLENSK

Gateway to City on Central Front Cracked in Red Advance.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Sept. 20 — Red army troops under Gen. Andrei Yeremenko, hero of the battle of Stalingrad, cracked the gateway to Smolensk on the central Russian front over the week-end as the Soviet advance shifted into high gear all along the active 700-mile battle line, a Russian communique announced.

Victory guns boomed in Moscow again as Russian troops drew nearer to Smolnesk and Kiev, two great German bastions on the Dnieper river.

In the north the Red army moved to within 30 miles of Smolensk, capturing Dukhovschina, while another Soviet column, striking down the railroad from Nezhin, was only 42 miles from Kiev, capital of the Ukraine.

Smolensk, Queen City of White Russia, was one of the first major Russian cities to fall in the initial German advance in 1941 and although it was reduced to rubble, its radiating railroad lines to Poland and the Baltic states made it a major German base.

Roslavl, to the south, was also menaced by the Red army, which, the Soviet communique said, stormed across the Desna river, major tributary of the Dnieper, to capture Dubrovka, 32 miles to the southeast, in an advance of nine miles during which 100 villages were taken.

Other army units advancing westward from Bryansk took 300 towns, including Trubchevsk, in a drive of 12 miles, the bulletin added.

THIEVES MAKE RAIDS ON RATION COUPONS

2,200 Taken in One of Three Thefts Reported Here.

A series of ration coupon thefts occurred in Marion during the week-end, police reported today.

Twenty-two hundred gasoline coupons were stolen from Bateman's Service station at the northeast corner of Church and State streets between 1 and 5 p. m. Saturday while the station was open, Donald S. Bateman reported to police Saturday. He said they probably were stolen at a time when he was outside waiting on a customer. The coupons had been pasted on sheets ready to be turned in.

Harold Hoffman of Caledonia reported to police yesterday that his A gas book along with his title and registration slip were stolen from the glove compartment of his car while it was parked at the rear of the Junior High school building last night between 7:30 and 9:15 o'clock.

Alice Wren of 191 Davids street informed police yesterday of the theft of her purse containing 11 grocery ration books and also A gasoline ration book number after 5 p. m. Saturday from her home.

CONGRESSIONAL STUDY OF SOCIAL SECURITY ASKED

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—A congressional study of the expected drain on social security funds now held by the government, in the light of wartime developments, was suggested today by Chairman George, Democrat of Georgia, of the senate finance committee.

George expressed agreement with Senator Vandenberg, Republican of Michigan, ranking member of the committee, that a close reexamination should be made before any decision is reached on doubling the contributions of employers and employees.

Employer and employee each now pay 1 per cent of the salary or wage into the trust fund from which the benefits are paid. Under the original law, this rate was to have been doubled to 2 per cent each on Jan. 1, 1942, an increase of $1,200,000,000 a year, but congress twice has ordered the hike postponed on the ground the fund held a large enough reserve to meet all conceivable needs.

CLASSES POSTPONED

Special war training classes scheduled to start tonight at Harding High school have been postponed to Wednesday, officials in charge announced today. Details of the classes and the meeting places are listed in story on Page 7 of today's Star.

ARMY BENEFIT SHOW TUESDAY

Few Seats Left but Kiwanis Club Already Over Top of $2,000 Goal.

The Kiwanis club today went over the top in its sale of tickets for the Marion premiere of Irving Berlin's movie, "This Is The Army," to be shown at the Ohio theater tomorrow night. However, a few seats remain, and tickets for these may be obtained at the theater box office.

The club topped its goal when ticket sales over the week-end reached the $2,000 mark — all of which will go into the Army and Navy Relief Fund. Sale of a group of boxes at more than the regular price of $2.20 enabled the club to reach its goal with a few seats yet to be sold.

Military Guests

Men and women of the armed forces home on leave and WACS and WAVES in the city will be guests of box holders and provide a military setting for the premiere Tuesday night.

All boxes have been sold, the six seats in each netting the club's fund for the Army and Navy Relief $33. A group of business firms and individuals have purchased the boxes and will make the seats available without charge to WAVES, WACS and Marion servicemen home on leave. They will be given access to the seats when they present themselves at the theater.

Mr. Huebner will have as his guests a group of stars from the company filming scenes for "Home in Indiana" and men and women of the armed forces will occupy the remaining boxes.

Program Details

A brief program at 7:30 o'clock will precede the picture. The Harding High school orchestra will play a group of numbers, under the direction of Homer Huffman, and talks will be given by Mayor Russell C. Snare, Elandes E. Miller, president of the Kiwanis club, Henry Krigbaum, ticket chairman, and Major Phillp E. Gruber, commanding officer at the Scioto Ordnance Plant. All are members of the Kiwanis club. Doors will open at 7 o'clock.

Proceeds of the premiere ticket sale, excepting taxes, will be turned over to the Army Emergency Relief Fund. The tickets sell for $2.20 each, with all seats reserved.

The musical show, in technicolor, brings to the screen motion picture and radio stars including Joan Leslie, George Murphy, Alan Hale, Una Merkel, Kate Smith, Sgt Joe Louis and others equally well known.

Time Change, Electric Rate Action Due Tonight

Final action on legislation proposing to set Marion clocks back an hour on the first Sunday in October and adopting a new electric rate for Marion customers of the Marion-Reserve Power Co., is to come before city council at a meeting tonight at 7:30.

Both proposals were given first readings at a special meeting last Monday night, and final action was delayed until tonight to allow time for interested persons to present their views before a vote is taken.

County's 3rd War Loan Total Pushed Past 3-Million Mark

Moves on Toward New $3,500,000 Goal; Expected To Go Higher Than That.

Marion county's Third War Loan total rolled on to new heights over the week-end, with Saturday sales of $242,093.75 pushing the purchases up to $3,145,498.75.

That is 111 per cent of the county's $2,829,000 goal, but throughout the campaign organization this morning there was renewed determination to "take the drive to the limit" by selling every possible bond before the end of the month.

The new unofficial quota of $3,500,000 set Saturday by Drive Chairman Robert E. White was expected to come within striking range by the middle of the week, and leaders were already determined not to stop if that figure is reached.

Leaders in charge of a three-day auction held in connection with a fall festival at LaRue Thursday, Friday and Saturday estimated that sales, when assembled and tabulated, will total $75,000. Details of the LaRue event appear elsewhere in today's Star.

Activities in Factories

Marion industrial concerns continued to push their phase of the drive among their employes and committee groups were holding regular meetings in efforts to push their sales to the quotas set for each plant. One such meeting was held at the Universal Cooler Corp. this morning in the interests of that company's campaign.

Huber Mfg. Co. workers reported this morning that several men in service who formerly worked at the company have taken note of the Third War Loan drive by sending back checks for bonds to be purchased through the company. Among the bonds ordered at the Huber last Friday were three $25 ones for an employe who brought in $40 in pennies as partial payment with instructions to take the remaining amount needed out of his pay check. He had accumulated the pennies over a period of months, and fortunately for the company's drive committee, had put them in coin wrappers, simplifying the task of counting them. Even so, there were 80 of the 50-cent wrapped packages.

Victory House Sales

The Victory House on the courthouse esplanade continued last week to carry on its activities at an increased tempo in connection with the Third War Loan drive. Its total sales for the week were $28,518.55 of which $28,226.65 was in bonds and $291.90 in stamps. Last week's sales dwarfed the $6,331.25 bond total and $142.15 stamp total of the preceding week.

Sales by days at the Victory House follow: Monday $2,481.25 in bonds and $32.40 in stamps, Tuesday $1,931.25 and $39.40, Wednesday $8,125 and $42.80, Thursday $3,381.25 and $57.45, Friday $1,293.75 and $93.10 in stamps, Saturday $11,014.15 and $25.75. The Victory House is manned by volunteer women workers organized under the leadership of Miss Maud Gorham, chairman of the women's

ITALY IS PUT ON ALLIES' SIDE

Badoglio Tells People It's Their Duty To Fight Against Germany.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 20—Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio told Italians in a broadcast that it was their "absolute duty to fight in the side of the British and Americans against the Germans and against the few senseless Italians—no longer of such name—who put themselves at their command."

The text of Badoglio's plea which was made from the new "radio Italiana" on Sept. 16, was released for publication after it had been flown here from the Italian mainland.

(The speech thus ranged Badoglio's leadership squarely against that of the former dictator, Benito Mussolini, who on Saturday was quoted by the German radio as having made a broadcast urging Italians to take up arms again at the side of Germany and Japan.)

Radio Italiana was described as the "new official radio of the Italian government" in the text released through official allied military channels.

The marshal, who formed his government on July 25, immediately after Mussolini was thrown out of office, told his people, "do not forget that all talk about unconditional surrender is out of date and irrelevant to the changed conditions of today. We have intervened decisively against Germany following on the aggressive attitude of the Germans. We are

Hollywood Troupe Expected To Finish Work Here Wednesday

R. E. "Duke" Goux, production manager of the Twentieth Century-Fox movie troupe on location at the Marion county fairgrounds, announced yesterday that the troupe would probably complete the Marion phase of the technicolor movie, "Home In Indiana," Wednesday afternoon.

He said this is virtually certain if the present production schedule is maintained and weather is favorable.

About 70 members of the company, including Director Henry Hathaway and the first camera unit headed by Cameraman Eddie Cronjager, will leave Thursday for Lexington, Ky., if the Marion filming is completed Wednesday. The remainder of the 94-member company will return to Fremont for about three days' additional work. As soon at the unit's work there is completed it will return to the Fox studios at Beverly Hills, Calif.

MADE DARING VISIT. Col. William Tudor Gardiner (above) a former governor of Maine, and Brig. Gen. They were American uniforms, minus caps.

SOUTH SIDE OF BAY HELD BY 5TH ARMY MEN

Salerno Battle Casualties Not as Heavy as Originally Expected.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 20—The American Fifth army has seized control of the south side of the bay of Naples by capturing all the commanding heights of Sorrento peninsula, allied headquarters announced today.

Already padlocked on the seaward side by the occupation of the islands of Capri, Ischia and Procida on either side of the bay, Italy's second largest port thereby came under the gaze of allied soldiers across 12 miles of water and within range of "Long Tom" artillery.

Easily within artillery range also were the Italian naval base of Castellammare, recently bombarded by the British navy, and the key railway town of Torre Annunziata, both in the lower elbow of the bay. Smoking Vesuvius rose but 10 miles from the allied mountain positions.

Reports from the Salerno area indicated battle casualties were not so high as had been feared at first.

While troops occupied the peninsula stretching 22 miles west of Salerno, other parts of the Fifth army slashed eastward and northward from their Salerno beachhead in the Montecorvino and Battipaglia sectors where the Germans apparently were making a full-scale retreat under a merciless air lashing reminiscent of the days when the British were trying to get out of Greece under the blows of the Nazi air force.

8th Corps Takes Gioja

The British Fifth corps, closing in from the Italian heel, captured Gioja, 38 miles from Taranto on the road to Allied-held Bari, and headquarters spokesman said the Germans had completed the evacuation of Sardinia, the huge island and air base which Mussolini had regarded as the No. 2 defense outpost of Italy.

(The German high command admitted that Sardinia had been given up.)

With the capture of Sardinia by Italian troops acting under orders of Premier Marshal Pietro Badoglio, the position of the Germans in Corsica, only seven miles to the north, apparently became untenable and the Allies gained the potential use of 10 airfields from which to press attacks on northern Italy and southern France.

It was not likely that much use was being made of Sardinia by Allied forces as yet, however, because of the floodtide of operations on the mainland now beating against Naples.

(A Morocco radio broadcast said the German commander had ordered a state of siege in the Naples area.)

The Fifth Army advances were reported made "against decreasing enemy resistance."

Further reinforcements continued to arrive on the Salerno beaches to swell the ranks of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's American and British forces which yesterday were reported to have captured Battipaglia and Altavilla.

All Of Sardinia Cleared

A military spokesman announced that all of Sardinia had now been cleared of German forces by two Italian divisions which ousted the Nazis on orders direct from Marshal Pietro Badoglio, who now is somewhere in Allied-held territory.

There were indications the Germans were making a full withdrawal from the Salerno battlefront, the spokesman said, adding that "considerable evidence of enemy vehicles was observed withdrawing."

The air force reported that American A-36 invaders attacked a column of 1,000 German vehicles traveling northward from Corsenza, 19 miles east of Rhoti facing the battlefront and destroyed or damaged 200 of them.

The Fifth army also has advanced north of Battipaglia in the face of stubborn opposition," the spokesman said. Small gains also were made in the vicinity of Montecorvino.

The British troops who captured Gioia, he said, encountered no Germans, but only extensive minefields and booby traps.

There was little news from the British Eighth army, which now had advanced some 250 miles from the southernmost toe, but it was considered probable the German withdrawal reported by the Nazi news agency Contarel might have been caused by the Eighth army getting due north past the Apennine bottleneck.

In spreading out on the downhill peninsula, the Allied forces moved on a direct course to the port of Naples from the south and southeast.

COUNTY GOLF TOURNEY ENDS

Title Won by Don Preuninger in 36-Hole Match with Bob Graham.

Don Preuninger of 493 Olney avenue is Marion county's 1943 golf champion.

He won the title by defeating Bob Graham of 433 Elmwood drive by a score of 7-6 in a 36-hole match played at the Mar-O-Del golf course yesterday. In winning the wartime championship Preuninger succeeds Lt. Robert C. Owens, 1942 titlist now in the U. S. Navy.

In defeating Graham, Preuninger fired a sub-par 36 on the first round, slipped to a 40 on the second nine, scored a 39 on the third and finished up in 40. Graham shot a 39 on the first nine, 43 on the second, 42 on the third and 40 on the final nine.

Accurate on Putts

Putting of the two finalists decided the match. Preuninger was exceptionally accurate on the greens, while Graham, usually a consistent player, was shaky in his green work. On the first round Preuninger sank two approach shots, the first a 20-yard shot on the second hole and the second a 15-yard chip shot on the third hole.

Preuninger battled his way to the final round by defeating Leo Groll 3-2 in the first, Leo Oberlander 2 up in the second round and R. C. Isaly 4-3 in the third round. Gra-

LONDON, Sept. 20—American and British [illegible] planes escorted by fighters streamed across the channel in huge formations yesterday to blast away at Nazi airfields and industrial targets in France and Holland.

The daylight attacks followed up swoops over industrial targets in the Rhineland Saturday night by the hard-working RAF Mosquitoes and continuation of the [illegible]-laying program by units of the RAF bomber command.

American Marauders, escorted by fighting fighters which shot down two German planes, bombed the Nazi airfield at Lille in one of yesterday's sorties. Three allied fighters were reported lost.

Spectators Get Treat as Film Company Puts in Busy Sunday

By LOREN W TIBBALS

Upward of 1,500 persons who watched the filming of scenes for "Home In Indiana" at the Marion County fairgrounds yesterday learned there's a lot more to filming a picture than just shouting CAMERA! ACTION!

On hand at various times during yesterday's busy movie schedule were both racing fans and movie enthusiasts, and others who just wanted to watch a movie company in action.

However, whether their interest centered on the racing or on the final movie production was just plain curiosity, all had an enjoyable time as guests of the Twentieth Century-Fox studios movie production company composed of 94 persons is in Marion to film scenes for their forthcoming technicolor production based on George Agnew Chamberlain's novel, "The Phantom Filly."

While many of those who visited the fairgrounds during the day were more than somewhat disappointed in not seeing the movie people in their performances, the Brennans at work, they did see Lon McCallister, Ward Bond and Noble Kid Chissell, playing in the races as race drivers.

Crowd Sees Stars

While the Brennans and other members of the cast were not included in scenes filmed Sunday, most of them were on hand. Members of the cast who were to be seen on the grounds included Brennan, who plays the role of J. F. "Thunder" Bost, announcer-salesman, Charles Dingle, who is cast as Godiva Bost, owner of a fine string of trotters and pacers, Jeanne Crain, who fills the role of Char Bruce, daughter of Driver Jed Bruce (Ward Bond), Willie Best, who plays the role of Mo Rum, a sleepy Negro stable hand, and George Reed another colored actor who in "Home in Indiana" is cast as Tuppy, also a swipe.

While the fairground turnout was thrilled in seeing the Hollywood troupe in action, many of the spectators marveled at the speed with which the large corps of electricians, painters and carpenters completed routine chores. The entire behind-the-scenes cast worked yesterday from 8 a. m. to after 5 p. m. It is this crew of workmen that arranges the settings before the cameras start to grind and removes the props after the cameras stop.

With the exception of two or three members of the cast the entire company was at the fairgrounds around 8:30 yesterday morning. Within 45 minutes the cameras were in operation filming a scene of the judge's stand. On the platform were H. D. Kirk of Anderson, Ind., who served as starter at the Sandusky county fair at Fremont and in that capacity was included in scenes made there, Dr. O. C. Alspach, Marion veterinarian, Viller Key of south of Marion and Ed Bisner of Tiffin.

Race Scenes Taken

Filmed throughout the remainder of the day were grandstand scenes and various "takes" for the big race which is won by Sparkle Thornton (Lon McCallister). Appearing in the same race were rival drivers Jed Bruce (Ward Bond) and Flee Flit Dryer (Noble 'Kid' Chissell).

The speed with which workmen, cameramen and actors alike completed their assigned duties brought from one highly interested spectator the remark, "Marion's never seen anything like this before."

Few Marionites had ever seen a movie troupe at work. For most people it was the first time they had ever seen a big movie camera. (Yesterday they saw two technicolor units in operation.) Few if any of the spectators realized how many different types of lighting devices were needed for some scenes. In addition to the huge arc lights which have been used daily since filming began at the fairgrounds last Thursday, scores of reflectors made of light-reflecting tin, silver and lead foil also dotted the fairground area.

One man who visited the fairgrounds for the first time since the movie makers arrived sincerely doubted the $2,000,000 production figure for "Home In Indiana." But after watching the troupe for two hours he remarked, "Can they do it for $2,000,000?" Of course he was taking into consideration the original cost of the cameras and other paraphernalia.

Costly Operations

R. E. "Duke" Goux, who is the company's production manager gave some idea of the terrific expense which the Fox studios encounter in making the picture realistic in every possible way. It is costing the studio $20,000 a day, he said, to keep the company on location. Multiply this figure by 60 days the number of days in which the company will be on location and you have something like $1,200,000. Add to this round trip train fares for the 94 persons in the company, freight charges for two express cars of equipment plus the cost of an additional month of shooting in Hollywood to complete the picture and you have a figure approaching $2,000,000.

Another little inside story was told by James Tinling who is director of the second camera unit. Jim said that more than 3,000 feet of film was shot yesterday. About half that much was filmed Saturday. Before the production is completed more than 60,000 feet of film will have been used. Jim added: "Before the war a picture of this type would have required about 160,000 feet of film. In cooperation with a conservation order the studios are rehearsing each scene several times before actually filming it." The screen play will include about 9,000 feet of film for a 90-minute showing.

It might be added that Jim Tinling is the man who directed most of Jane Withers' early films. Before coming east to direct action filming for "Home In Indiana" Jim completed "Guadalcanal Diary," which was filmed with Marine stations at Camp Pendleton, Calif. He also has directed the Jones family series and was director of the western films in which A. - American Johnny Mack Brown starred.

Horses Rented

To make the picture a horse racing tale Director Henry Hathaway said shortly after he arrived in Marion last week that realism could not be spared at all. To make the picture such a success, Pat McPherson, a nationally known horseman who is serving on the production staff as a technical adviser, has secured eight Grand Circuit drivers and rented 18 trotters for the film. The drivers are Jack Mahoney, C. H. Dozier, Byron Perry, Ed Dubrowski, Jay Wile, Chet Hodgins, Charles Swanheim and Fay Rouse. All of the pilots are leading Grand Circuit drivers with the exception of Chet Hodgins, whose stable is located in Canada.

The leading equine performers in the picture were seen on the fairground track for the first time Sunday. Playing the part of Madeen Bruce is Miss Sarah Agnes, a three-year-old chestnut owned by Walter J. Mirone of Boston. Madeen's principal rival is played by Thelma Hanover, a three-year-old bay.

SHAKEUP POSSIBLE IN HIGH COMMAND

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—Speculation that a possible shakeup in the very high command was received today in the wake of an editorial in the authoritative but unofficial Army and Navy Journal which declared that "powerful interests" would like to eliminate Gen. George C. Marshall from the Washington scene.

There have been recurring reports for several months that Marshall, who has been chief of staff since 1939, might be sent to Europe as commander in chief of allied forces in that theater.

The Army and Navy Journal declared Marshall's replacement not only would "shock the nation, but also would deprive President Roosevelt of 'the valuable advice he has received . . . on military activities everywhere' from his present chief of staff.

The job of leading the European invasion could be "ballyhooed" as a reward for his services the Journal said, but actually it would mean assignment to a single theater of operations, stripping Marshall of the broad command he now holds over all Army forces.

CHURCHILL DRAFTS REPORTS ON PARLEYS

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 20 — Prime Minister Churchill, back in Britain after a momentous six-week visit to Canada and the United States, plunged today into the task of preparing a war review to be presented shortly to the house of commons.

The review, which will be Churchill's first since his brief statement to commons July 27 and which is expected to be one of his longest, will open a two-day war debate when parliament reconvenes after a brief summer recess.

It is anticipated that during the debate the government will be asked, among other things, to explain why Italy was given a "breathing space" after Benito Mussolini's fall and why the allies failed to demand from the Badoglio government the immediate surrender of the former duce.

The first commons debate in eight weeks also is expected to demand additional details on the Italian surrender, more definite news of proposed conferences between Britain, the United States and Russia.

CELINA, O., Sept. 20—Common Pleas Judge Raymond A. Younger said today he would pass sentence this week on Louis Hand, 17-year-old farm laborer who admitted beating 6-year-old Richard Stober to death last July 3 because the child "razzed" him.

Convicted of first degree murder without recommendation of mercy by a jury of eight men and four women, the youth faces a mandatory death sentence. Judge Younger said defense counsel would be given an opportunity to file appeal motions.

THIS IS WHAT RATION BOOK FOUR will look like. The stamps are narrower in width than the first books issued by the Office of Price Administration, and bear different designs.

OPA EXPLAINS WAR RATION BOOK NO. 4

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—War ration book four, for use beginning in November and designed to last at least two years, was explained today by the office of price administration.

The new book, to be issued at a nationwide school house registration the last 10 days of October, will combine point and unit stamps. There will be 384 stamps, printed in blue, red, green and black.

The red and blue stamps will be used in conjunction with red and blue tokens, to be introduced early in 1944 and given as change in stamp expenditures for meat, dairy products and processed foods.

The green stamps will be used on an "interim basis" with blue processed food stamps, much in the manner the brown stamps of book three are now being used in the meats-fats program.

Twelve of 96 unit stamps, printed in black, are designated for sugar. The same number are marked for coffee, which no longer is rationed. These and 72 others marked "spares" will be reserved for any additional foods rationed, OPA said.

Use of the new book for two years compares with four or five months for earlier ones. But the cost of printing and distributing book four—about $1,500,000—will be about the same, OPA stated.

Exact times and places of the schoolhouse registration, arranged because of lack of time for a mail distribution, will be announced locally, OPA explained, as regional offices complete their plans.

Quick Fall of Corsica Expected in London

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 20—The quick fall of Corsica was expected in London today on the heels of the German evacuation of Sardinia which was seen as resulting directly from the allied victory at Salerno.

One argument is that the Germans either had to hold both Sardinia and Corsica in strength or give up both and they had only elements of two divisions in the two islands before the push in Italy and fewer men afterward.

Camp Millard Men Set Up Rail Exhibit in Capital Bond Show

Special to The Star

...YRUS, Sept. 20 — Lt. Col. ... E. Cheshire has just returned ... Washington, D. C., where ... supervised the erection of ... ment from Camp Millard ... forming part of the "Back ... Attack" show being given ... by the Army service forces ... junction with the Third ... Loan drive.

...training in Washington is a detail of 29 enlisted men from Millard and a commissioned officer. They are performing a function that has won the approval of high military officials as well as the public who witness their productions. Included in the equipment sent from Millard to Washington was several prefabricated box cars. These cars are of foreign type similar to the kind it may be necessary for the battalions to work on when they arrive at their ultimate overseas assignment. For the past two months they have been training on these cars at the technical training shops here, tearing them down and then reassembling them. They are doing this same operation before the public in Washington.

Drilled In Details

When parts for the cars first come into the shops here, they are strewn from one end of cars to the others. Bolts and nuts in one car, sideframes, wheels or roof parts in another and still other parts elsewhere. These are sorted and the cars assembled without access to blueprints or plans. The car building knowledge of the officers and non-commissioned officers is the only pattern that assists in the construction.

Also included in the equipment sent to Washington was an English type brake van, a gondola and three cars that comprise a mobile machine shop unit. This unit is the latest innovation of the transportation corps and the Army service forces. Two cars are completely equipped with lathes, drill press, threader and other pieces of machinery vital to the successful repair of railroad rolling stock. If, when overseas, there is no shop available, the mobile unit can be brought up to the piece of equipment to be repaired. The cars were first assembled here at Millard and wired. Holes were drilled and the machinery bolted to the floor. This equipment occupied two of the cars. Into the third car was put generators and power machinery to furnish the necessary power to run the machine shop. Then it was completely disassembled and shipped to Washington where it was reconstructed by the men from Camp Millard who are now working there on detached service.

Exhibit At Bucyrus

During the annual corn show to be held is Bucyrus Sept. 23-25, similar equipment to that which is being shown in Washington will be on exhibition in the square. Tracks will be laid in the middle of the street and four pieces of rolling stock constructed on these tracks. A special invitation is extended by both the military personnel and the corn show officials for residents of this community and neighboring communities to visit the show and witness this example of Army service forces training. An especial invitation is extended to all railroaders and industrial leaders and workers as there will be on hand officers or non-coms to explain in more technical terms, the nature of the work.

Aside from the display of railroad equipment there will also be a showing of troops and formations.

DOES YOUR CAR SUFFER FROM "STILLWEAR?"

Mileage driven isn't the only measure. Even cars that are put away or used only for short distances need regular inspection and service. Too much idleness causes "Stillwear." To avoid this deterioration, thorough lubrication and regular checkups are recommended.

This one's going to hurt !

INVASION COMES HIGH—in blood and money.

Part of the cost must be paid with human life. That means deep and lasting hurt for many and many an American family.

Part of the cost must be paid in cash . . . this September. And that's going to hurt, too!

The 3rd War Loan Is Here!

To pay for invasion—to get the money to keep our fighting machine going—you, and every man or woman in America, are asked to invest in at least one extra $100 Bond in September.

$100 EXTRA, mind you—for everybody!

No man or woman can hold back. No man or woman can point to his Payroll buying and say, "They don't mean me!" No man or woman can say, "I'm already lending 10% or 12% or 20%—I'm doing enough!"

Sure—it's going to hurt. It's going to take more than spare cash this time—more than just money that might have gone for fun. It's going to take money we have tucked away. It's going to take part of the money we've been living on—money that might have meant extra shoes or clothes or food! Money that might have gone for anything that we can get along without!

Sure—it'll be tough to dig up that extra money. But we've got to do it—and we will.

We'll do it partly because of the look that would come over the faces of our fighting men if we should fail. We'll do it partly because the cheapest, easiest way out of this whole rotten business is for everybody to chip in all he can and help end it quick. We'll do it partly because there's no finer, safer investment in the world today than a U. S. War Bond.

But mostly, we'll do it because America is right smack in the middle of the biggest, deadliest, dirtiest war in history.

And we're Americans.

No Sure Cure

THOSE who propose a national service act as the cure for a manpower shortage in this country would be especially interested in the story passed through British censorship of a strike of 15,000 coal miners in Nottinghamshire over the issue of an 18-year-old boy who refused to obey a government order to work underground in a mine. Though the British system of labor conscription has been getting results largely by being held in abeyance, the difficulty of obtaining manpower for the mines, according to the report of the strike published by The New York Times, is expected to force authorities to conscript youths for the pits.

As discussion of a national service act develops, stimulated by official testimony of acute manpower shortages in the armed services and industrial production, the chief point to be remembered is that such an act would not be a sure cure. Too much should not be expected, if it is tried. It might ease some problems, but almost certainly others would be created. A homegrown sample of possible complications appeared this week in Trenton, N. J., when it was disclosed that union dues had been collected from United States soldiers who volunteered to work in canneries to help save the tomato crop.

Confessions That Made History

WHEN the chairman of the house ways and means committee, Rep. Doughton, the Democratic party's octogenarian expert on taxation, admits he had to hire an expert to settle his Sept. 15 score with the internal revenue bureau, the cat is out of the bag. If Rep. Doughton can't do it, who else is supposed to be able to do it?

The result may be good. Rep. Doughton now seems in a mood to undo some of the complications his committee and the so-called experts of the treasury department foisted on the public in their attempt to keep the Republican minority in congress from getting credit for putting over the pay-as-you-go principle of income tax collection.

What the 40,000,000-odd citizens who have to deal with income taxation want today is the same thing they wanted yesterday and the day before yesterday—a system of collection that makes it possible to pay the money without a lot of preliminary wrestling with higher arithmetic. The old adage about taxation is still the best: The aim of every tax bill should be to pluck the most feathers from the geese with the least squawking.

America's Common Purposes

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S war review, as submitted to congress, is a comprehensive statement of great national purpose successfully undertaken.

This country is now approaching the second anniversary of its direct participation in the greatest war of all time. Its contribution to the war has reached a level befitting the strength and character of the republic.

There remains a vast deal to be done; Mr. Roosevelt properly lays stress on the huge proportions of the military task the United States and its allies have undertaken. But there is no room for doubt any more that the great obligations assumed will be performed creditably.

America's common purposes are united in all important respects for maximum effort in the war and maximum influence in the settlements that will determine the nature of the peace to follow. There will continue to be controversies within the national unity, but they will be settled in the traditional American way of free discussion and open judgment.

The administration has taken steps to coordinate the government machinery created to deal with special wartime problems. It is working with less friction and lost motion than it was early last summer; it will work even better in the months to come as weak places are discovered and repaired. While its accomplishments are less than could be wished, they are greater than might have been expected.

The influence of minorities has been and will continue to be tempered by the impact of public opinion. There is substantial agreement on all important principles of the national war effort. Dissatisfaction and the perennial striving for special advantage that all governments must deal with are being dealt with systematically and with regard to the relative value of the claims advanced. The nation and the government are in a state of reasonable balance. America is poised to perform the duty which it has won the right to perform by destiny—to repudiate aggression and exert its own unprecedented influence thereafter for human society governed by the principles of equal opportunity for all men.

News Behind the News

Big Effect of Father-Draft Pressure Is Driving Men Into Industry.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—The secret of the Roosevelt-Churchill business may be found in a little-noticed, but apparently manufactured, episode.

The Army early in August [illegible] fathers to fill out its [illegible] for a 5,000,000 man [illegible]. It [illegible] 7,500,000 [illegible] army, which is [illegible] of [illegible].

But no [illegible] by [illegible] Secretary Patterson [illegible] announced that [illegible] plants must have 2,000,000 [illegible] men in the same period, [illegible] before the end of the year. [illegible] confirmed by a budget of [illegible] pre-war need, because men cannot [illegible] without equipment.

The current agitation on the father-draft subject is [illegible] driving fathers into [illegible] plants where they can [illegible] deferment. No one can prove that the contemplated has been kept at its fever pitch on the front pages solely for the purpose of effecting that result. At the same time no one can deny that this is the main result of the controversy so far.

In other words, the threat of draft is accomplishing the administration's purpose of getting men voluntarily into war industry, and, as long as they can keep this pressure going, they will serve a purpose which seems more important than the gathering of 146,000 fathers for a slightly larger army. The tail actually already is wagging the dog.

Army Likely to Win

There was no doubt that a majority of the reconvening congress was stacked up against the father draft. Terrific popular pressure against it has been discerned by the legislators.

At the same time, the Army has never failed to have its way with congress. Furthermore, the anti-draft bill will certainly be vetoed, if passed, because the President always follows war department policy, when he does not make it himself. Together they should be able easily to get more than the one-third of congress necessary to sustain the veto.

Therefore, it seems inevitable that the Army can start drafting fathers Oct. 1 if it wants to, and it says so far it is determined to do so.

Avoiding Post-War Jangle

Senator Vandenberg is proud of the job his committee performed for the Republican party with its Mackinac declaration on post war. Some of the other Republican leaders have received letters from constituents expressing dissatisfaction with it, however, on the ground it did not say more.

Just after the Senate and House Republican leaders met with State Secretary Hull [illegible] the war and the administration policies declaration. Many in the party, especially the New Deal extreme leftists, thought that was too vague also.

As an objective commentator, I would say the opponents were right in both instances, that both Republican and Democratic statements were too vague and for a mighty good reason.

Any responsible leadership which gets out in front now with anything very definite on post war will promote a discussion which will shake the country, not only diverting its attention from the war, but promoting public disunity.

If either the administration or the Republicans took a determined stand on any specific direction the best war interests of the country would not be served. Unofficial debate serves a healthy purpose in sifting ideas for weighed truth, but official division would start a fight.

As matters now stand on both sides of the fence, the strong advocates of special methods on both sides can be kept to their unofficial knitting.

Hope to Avoid Uproar

If this wholesome but unsatisfactory (to many) condition can prevail in the coming senate discussions over the Ball-Burton-Hatch-Hill pressure group, an uproar there can also be avoided. Obviously, the senate administration leaders do not want acrimonious debate. The problem of the Democratic leadership, just like the Republicans at Mackinac, is to devise a declaration which will sound allright, but will not open up a big fight over future foreign policy.

This matter of drawing up indeterminate statements of policy is like writing a platform for a political convention. No one remembers what was in a platform a week after its carefully chosen words are announced, sometimes not even the candidates. The important thing in conventions is the personality of the candidate, which cannot be reduced to words. The importance of these post war declarations likewise will rest upon individual personalities, expressed in detailed action rather than phrases.

Italy's Rugged Apennines

Mountains Handicap Allied Invasion.

AS SEPARATE British armies moving from heel and toe of the Italian boot approach the ankle level of the American beachhead at Salerno, what is the lay of the land?

The airline across the ankle from the Gulf of Salerno on the Tyrrhenian sea to the Gulf of Manfredonia on the Adriatic is 83 miles, says a National Geographic society bulletin. Two-thirds of this width bristles with the rugged peaks and ridges of the southern Appennine. Although lower in the Salerno neighborhood than farther north and south, they reach to numerous 5,000-foot peaks behind the port, crowding the shore and allowing only narrow areas of coastal plain. On the back of the ankle they taper down to fertile, rolling farm hills sloping gently from Foggia and Cerignola to the Adriatic.

Barring Allied progress northwest from Salerno toward Naples are the Nazi-held Lattari mountains, across which Italy's important coast rail and highway routes run to nearby Pompei and past Mt. Vesuvius.

Inland from Salerno the Picentini mountains, with peaks up to 6,000 feet, cover a circular area about 30 miles in diameter. These and other such groups in the Basilicata or Lucanian Apennines farther east are barriers to straight line travel, but they have not deterred Italian engineers from building mountain railroads and highways to link their two coasts.

Starting from Salerno, one well-graded route over the mountains leads north to Avellino, then northeast to Foggia and Manfredonia. Another leads east through Eboli to Potenza, then north to Melfi and northeast to Barletta. Following the river valleys where feasible, each of these routes totals more than 120 miles in traversing the 83-mile airline distance. The shortest rail route runs north from Salerno past Avellino to join the Naples line at Benevento, then winds east, frequently tunneling under the mountains for considerable distance. Its mileage exceeds that of the highways.

More Than Blueberry Pie

By J. L. Stanley in Printer's Ink.

IN a contest conducted among Marines by a base newspaper seeking the best answer to the question, 'What are we fighting for?' the prize winning contribution was as follows:

"The aroma of mom's cooking—the sand-lot baseball and football games—the playful tugging of your dog—the beers you had with the boys—that's what we're fighting for, mates."

There are war aims and war aims, and one man's war aim is another man's poison—which is probably as it should be in a democracy. Yet one can't help wondering whether military or quasi-military dissemination of the "blueberry pie" variety of war aim (as exampled above) isn't a denial to our soldiers of a more intellectually honest, a more lofty planned set of war aims. Surely the concept of blueberry pie does not elevate the stature of our fighting men as thinkers, to the contrary it only serves to beat out the oft-repeated contention that, as compared with his British or Russian comrade-in-arms, the American doughboy has only a meager conception of what this war is all about.

Our country has taken up arms to fight ruthless aggression and in so doing to preserve our way of life. Are we not fighting so that our mothers and daughters and sisters and cousins and aunts are not subjected to the sort of violence inflicted on the women of Nanking? Are we not fighting so that Detroit, San Francisco, New York and Keokuk are not treated as were Warsaw and Rotterdam and Coventry and London? Are we not fighting so that Georgians and Dakotans and Hoosiers are spared the gas and bombs visited upon spear-brandishing Ethiopians by mechanized fascists? To gloss over such facts is to say that the eradication of fascism is, too blunt and brutal a thought with which to burden our fighting men's intelligence.

THAT a large number of our service men have but a naive understanding of why they're fighting is due possibly to the fact that psychologically we're not fighting for — we're fighting against. Our entrance in this war came only after we were attacked. Our national thinking, therefore, is molded and colored by the motive of revenge. "We'll fix those dirty Japs for what they did at Pearl Harbor" seems to be the basic war aim of far too large a segment of our armed forces.

England accepted battle with the Nazis while wholly unprepared, an act of a brave and proud people. Consequently, the English are actually fighting for something—however material or ideal it may be is beside the point. The Russians, while attacked like ourselves, have seen huge portions of their land laid waste, untold numbers of their people killed, tortured and persecuted. They, of course, know at first hand what they're fighting for—and it isn't blueberry pie—or borsch—at least as far as any Russian has been heard to declare.

The British army's bureau of current affairs is going a long way to give young fighting Englishmen education on current social problems and international affairs. There is need of an American counterpart to spread knowledge in the ranks of our armed forces so that our youth, as they prepare to make their sacrifices, may realize that they are selling their lives for something more basically fundamental, more truly important than a mother's cooking, a slice of pie, a pet dog or a glass of beer—none of which, be it remembered, is the private monopoly of this or any other nation.

SOS for Working Mothers

Income Tax Deduction Sought for Hiring Home Help.

By ADELAIDE KERR
Associated Press Writer

A LOT of wives and mothers who work, keep house and mother children would like to have deductions made in their income tax to cover the expense of hiring help at home.

The war work which women are doing has intensified a problem that has plagued working mothers for years. They are all faced with two alternatives: They must (1) live a life resembling a three ring circus, or (2) they must pay for help which takes care of their responsibilities at home.

Some try the first. They rise at dawn, race through half a day's housekeeping chores before they go to the job, do a day's hard work in office or factory, rush home to do the family washing, ironing and baking and fall into bed exhausted somewhere near midnight. Besides this they try to settle the many personal and psychological problems that arise within a home. Most of them break eventually.

Hiring a Housekeeper

The others hire a housekeeper—a very expensive procedure these days—and so spend a good deal of money replacing their own services on the home front. Thousands of these women find that after all the bills and taxes are paid, they have very little to show for a year's hard work. Since many of them work because they have to, this means real hardship.

One harassed young working mother said to me the other day:

"I'm just a clearing house for somebody else's dollars. It just isn't worth what it takes. And yet I've got to work. Women like me, who run a job, a house and children too should be permitted some deductions in income tax to cover the expense of help at home, which we have to have. And the same thing should be done for widower's who are rearing children."

Such a tax deduction for working wives and for working mothers and fathers who carry home responsibilities alone, surely would be reasonable. Many women do first class factory war work—but not if they neglect responsibilities at home and not if the cost of help to replace themselves at home cuts their budgets to ribbons.

What does a tax expert have to say on the subject?

"Personally I am in sympathy with such an income tax deduction," says David Boyd Chase, partner of J. K. Lasser & Co. tax accountants. "But as a tax practitioner I cannot agree with it. Because the law as it now stands does not provide for such a deduction.

Appeal Denied

"Moreover there is, in a sense, a precedent against it. In 1939 a man and his wife, who both worked, applied for such a deduction to cover the expense of a nursemaid for their child. At that time the Board of Tax Appeals—now known as the Tax Court of the United States—ruled as follows: 'The cost of hiring a nursemaid to care for the infant child of a couple, both of whom are employed, is not deductible as an ordinary and necessary business expense.'

"If such deductions are allowed working wives and mothers there must be a change in the law."

So it's another one of those things that's up to congress this fall.

Christy Mathewson

He and John McGraw Conspired to Perform Miracle Almost 40 Years Ago When Giants Slipped.

By DAMON RUNYON

THE long arm of coincidence reached out the other evening and gathered in an essay for me.

I was discussing with some baseball [illegible] the [illegible] plight of the New York Giants, holding up the season in last place and wondering if John McGraw has turned over in his grave, when a friend interrupted my lament to present me to a charming lady, Mrs. Christy Mathewson Jr.

Her name and the topic of the baseball Giants, produced the coincidence [illegible] the wife of the only son of Christy Mathewson, the baseball player whose fame [illegible] echoes off Coogan's Bluffs to this very [illegible] though he has been dead some years. [illegible] long before his passing that he came [illegible] bling for the last time out of the [illegible] the old ball yard in Harlem.

He had a curious gait that caused his [illegible] players to nickname him "Gum Boots." He had a lot of other nicknames. The [illegible] called him "the Big Fella." To the New York fans he was "Big Six," a title said to have been derived from the designation of the New York typographical union. His friends knew him "Matty," rarely Christy.

He was a rookie pitcher not long out of college with the Giants around the turn of the century when they were just as deep in last place as they are now. It was about the middle season of the year and they had no chance to win when there appeared on the Polo Grounds a cocky, acid-tongued, rough-and-tumble man who had been a famous third baseman with the immortal Baltimore Orioles.

THAT was McGraw. Known—but call his face at your peril—as "Muggsy." Horace Freedman, then president of the Giants, hired him to manage the dejected club. It was this same McGraw who years later took a 20-year-old boy, Mel Ott, out of school to sign him and train him in the McGrawian baseball tradition, and it is this same Mel Ott who has just been given another term as manager of the Giants and who may find a tip in the next few paragraphs.

McGraw, fresh as paint, bold and belligerent, eyed the 20 or more players on the Giants' roster when he took over and promptly gave all but about a dozen the gate. Freedman, a frugal operator, protested, as the players meant an investment to him, but McGraw replied: "I can finish last with nine men as well as I can with 90."

Mathewson, a right-handed speedball pitcher, was one of those retained. A year or so later he was a big factor in pitching the Giants to a pennant, and in the world series of 1905 he shut out the Philadelphia Athletics in three of the five games, a record still unsurpassed.

In the succeeding years he became McGraw's ace and intimate friend and the undisputed monarch of the mound. As his speed diminished he developed the curve that was to become famous as the fadeaway and to make him, in the opinion of many old timers, the greatest pitcher.

HE was a new type to baseball in those days—conservative with his money, and sensible in capitalizing on his reputation. He was a big blond chap, well educated, and of great dignity.

He was taciturn among strangers but voluble with close friends. He lived in the manner of a quiet, prosperous businessman, choosing his associates carefully. Some thought him cold, but in a period when Manhattan was interested mainly in baseball and vaudeville he was the idol of the island. When you got to know him well, you found he had rather a warm personality.

Despite all the titles suggesting size and the impression of bigness that he gave them when he was on the field, Matty was not of rugged construction. He went from the Giants to manage Cincinnati, but his health steadily declined, and he finally died after a long illness at Saranac. His wife still lives there.

His son never attempted professional baseball but became an aviator. He met with a serious accident while flying in China several years ago, but is now in the air force with headquarters at Phoenix. He resembles his famous father in many ways, notably in reticence.

Tomatoes

By Truman Twill

As the old saying is, "He may not have sense enough to come in out of the rain and he may drool a little, but anyone can raise tomatoes."

But he wanted to be sure. So he decided to raise a few tomatoes—he raised a lot. And one can raise tomatoes.

And he eats tomatoes until he is as sick of them as war heroes are of canned meat. He picks tomatoes until he winces when he sees a red gleam through the foliage.

He buys cans and his womenfolk cram tomatoes into the cans. He gets muscle-bound packing tomatoes through a screen to make catsup. He digs up recipes for sauces and tomato puree and fried green tomatoes.

He finds the tomatoes are even worse than the string beans, which he thought would never stop coming. When worry warts stroke their beards and talk about early frost, he spits with joy. Maybe an early frost would get rid of the tomatoes. He can't.

There are, after all, just so many things that can be done to dispose of tomatoes. They can be thrown at the starlings. They are great for heaving against the white houses of unpopular neighbors on Halloween.

They may be eaten fresh out of the garden on warm days between bursts of exercise, letting the juice dribble down the corn and on to the chest.

They may be given away to neighbors and friends. They may be packed in cans, buckets and displayed proudly as proof of prowess in the vegetable kingdom.

They may be lined up on the windowsills and permitted to ripen under surveillance. They may be sliced and eaten with salt, or sugar, or both. They may be stewed and eaten with vinegar and sugar.

They may be regarded with amazement as the bearer of vitamins and the recommendation of strong indorsements by health authorities, private and public.

They are excellent for lobbing at stray dogs, cats and sitting rabbits. But no matter what use they are put to, they are still tomatoes. When you've seen one you've seen 'em all, and tasted 'em, too. The fellow who raises 100 tomato plants in his first year as an amateur gardener—because anyone can raise tomatoes—is a sadder but a wiser man.

So They Say—

The air and surface war against the Japs barges is warming the seat of the enemy's pants. Burn 'em up.—Vice Adm. William F. Halsey in South Pacific naval forces.

The normal social processes have been completely destroyed in some countries [illegible] normal life can be reconstructed only with the greatest of difficulties.—Dr. Grayson N. Kefauver of Stanford university.

MacArthur Runs Well Against Roosevelt in Nationwide Poll

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 20—One of the highlights of the political situation today is the growing popular strength of General Douglas MacArthur as a possible candidate for president.

Although the 63-year-old general has never aspired to political office, is not the top choice of Republicans as their presidential nominee at this time, he looms strong when pitted against President Roosevelt in a presidential "trial heat," he runs as strong as race as Thomas E. Dewey.

This fact is revealed in a nation-wide Institute survey in which a cross-section of voters of all parties from coast to coast were presented with this question:

"If the Presidential election were being held TODAY, and Roosevelt were running for President on the Democratic ticket against MacArthur, how do you think you would vote?"

The result is:

Roosevelt	58%
MacArthur	42

Similar "trial heats" were conducted last month pitting Roosevelt against Dewey and against Willkie. General MacArthur's relative strength as a candidate against Roosevelt can be seen by comparing the above vote with the following:

Roosevelt	59%
Willkie	41
Roosevelt	55%
Dewey	45

When President Roosevelt was elected for a third term in 1940, he received 55 per cent of the major party vote.

Although Roosevelt outpolls Dewey, Willkie and MacArthur at present, his advantage is not as great as the percentages would seem to indicate.

A Democratic candidate to be elected president must normally have about 52 per cent of the major party vote in order to win in the electoral college. This is because the overwhelming popular majorities rolled up by the Democrats in the South do not increase the electoral vote count, which is figured on a state-by-state basis and not on a national basis. Grover Cleveland, the Democratic candidate in 1888, had 50.4 per cent in terms of popular vote—a majority—and yet lost to Harrison in the electoral college. Woodrow Wilson in 1916 had a clear majority in the total popular vote—51.7 percent—and yet this lead, when translated into electoral votes, gave him only eleven to spare.

Strong in Mid-West

When pitted against Roosevelt, MacArthur runs his best race in the East Central and West Central states and in the Rocky Mountain states. One of the states in the East Central area, Illinois, has already taken the lead in forming MacArthur-for-President clubs.

In general, MacArthur's greatest handicap is similar to that of other leading G. O. P. candidates, namely a relative lack of popular appeal with voters in the lower economic levels and with civilian voters in the young age groups. Among all these groups President Roosevelt has maintained a solid popularity ever since he was elected to office in 1932.

Mac Arthur's great strength, and in fact the strength of the Republican Party generally, lies in the farm areas, particularly those of the Middle West.

MORGENTHAU PRAISES J. C. PENNEY CO. RECORD

$42,335,816 Sold in Bonds and Stamps in July.

As the result of having sold $42,335,816.85 in war stamps and bonds during July, the J. C. Penney Co. has been congratulated by Treasury Secretary Henry J. The total was four times the quota set for the campaign and nearly five times the 1942 July figure, which at that time set a record for chain and department stores.

The company sold 25 per cent more in bonds and stamps last July than in merchandise. The Marion store contributed $10,500 to the huge national total for 1,610 stores, or $2,500 more than its quota.

The announcement of the July achievement came as the company joined in the nationwide Third War Loan campaign this month. In connection with the current drive, the company has announced the purchase of $10,000,000 in bonds, with credit for the total apportioned among its stores. The Marion share of the total is $8,000.

ST. PAUL'S ENGLISH LUTHERAN CHURCH was the scene of the marriage of Miss Anna Mae Spano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Spano of 504 Windsor street, and Ross D. Shoup, son of Mr. and Mrs. Durward Shoup of Richwood, last evening. For the candlelit ceremony, read at 7:30 o'clock by Rev. J. David Mumford, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church in Bucyrus, the couple repeated the double ring service. Decorations on the altar were roses and white gladioli and palms, and candles held in two five-tiered candelabra.

MORE FUNDS TO SAVE CHILD CARE PLAN

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 20—Acceptance of a bureau of budget recommendation for an additional congressional appropriation of $18,600,000 for maternity and medical care for wives of servicemen might save Ohio's program from a threatened collapse.

Representative Lea (D-Calif) announced in Washington the budget bureau had suggested the additional funds to augment the current appropriation of $4,400,000. Many states have found their share of the allotment inadequate, Lea said.

Dr. R. H. Markwith, state health director here, said Ohio's program would suffer a financial collapse shortly unless more funds were forthcoming. Of the $196,000 allocated to Ohio, only $48,257 remains to finance new claims.

The director reported applications were pouring in at the rate of 150 to 160 a day, where only 50 daily had been anticipated.

Police Hunt Slayer of Girl in New York

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 20—Police today were seeking the identity of a man clad in a sailor uniform who was reported to have been with 15-year-old Frances Mary Wallace of Philadelphia Saturday night several hours before she was found slain in a hotel room here.

The girl, found on a bed with her skull crushed and a wooden coat hanger thrust down her throat, was identified yesterday by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Wallace of Philadelphia.

The couple had reported their daughter missing last July.

Detective John Hawthorne said that it had been established that the girl and a man in a seaman's outfit registered as "Mr. and Mrs. McGillick" at the Hotel Cosmopolitan and that the man was seen leaving the hotel about 45 minutes later.

FATHER DRAFT

marks from various theaters of ...ar:

"These troops are all on de...mand for certain times and ...places," he said. "We do not want ...to use hastily gathered people. We ...has to do that in the early part ...of the war, but thank God we do ...not have to do that now."

As an example of the large ...number of specially trained troops ...that are needed, Marshall said ...post occupation troops now were ...being moved into Salerno and "we ...hope soon to have men in to oc...cupy the port of Naples."

The chief of staff said that ...200,000 additional inductees were ...needed monthly to keep the armed ...forces at par and to bring the ...Army to the goal of 7,700,000 by ...the end of the year.

Citing losses in personnel ...through sickness and other causes, Marshall said there is no way of ...estimating battle casualties ac...curately.

Salerno Casualties Uncounted

"We don't yet know the ...casualties of Salerno," he said. "We have been busy fighting—...tabulating can come a little later."

Marshall told the committees that he was being pressed by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Gen. Douglas MacArthur and others for ...trained troops.

"These units have to be created, trained, disciplined and prepared for operations," he said. "If we don't do that now, we cannot do it in time.

Marshall said that demands for ...bomber crews had been heavier from England than expected and that fatigue, rather than casualties, put pilots out of action in the Mediterranean theater.

"You cannot conduct war all over the world and not consider the loss of men going and com...ing," he said, referring to their inaction while traveling rather than to personnel losses. "The pipeline must be kept filled."

"We are now, for the first time, ready to make full use of our ground forces," Marshall said. "Do you wish to cut down on them?"

"Certainly you would not wish to cut down on the program of air development."

As an example of the necessity of a reserve of well-trained troops, Marshall said that the first division to land in Salerno "had never been in battle before."

Originally a division of 15,000, he testified, it was cut down last fall to 9,000 by diversions to other units and "it took six months to build it up again to strength."

"It would have been better," he said, "if it had not been ripped to pieces."

No Compromise with Foe

On the need of troops, Marshall said, "there will be no compro...mise from the Japanese and the Germans."

A denial of quotas for the bal...ance of the year, he continued, ...might make difficult the task of finding "where to make the ad...justments."

"If it comes to emotions, we in the war department don't have the right to emotions," Marshall replied. "We have some 700,... ...fathers in the army now. ...What happens to them?"

The general reiterated previous assertions that "men over 38 are a burden."

A possible compromise by ...which the drafting of fathers ...might be delayed 30 days while selective service re-examines ...local and occupational defer...ments was reported under consid...eration today by members of the ...senate military committee.

Senator Bridges (R-NH) dis...closed some committee members have been discussing the feasibili...ty of offering such a proposal ...as a substitute for a bill by Sena...tor Wheeler (D-Mont) which ...would postpone the induction of ...all fathers for the rest of the ...war.

"I don't know whether anything ...will be done about it or not," Bridges told a reporter, "but that ...would be acceptable to a number ...of senators who don't want to ...see draft fathers but still don't ...want to deny the Army any men ...it needs."

The committee arranged today ...to hear Gen. George C. Marshall, ...army chief of staff, and Admiral ...Ernest J. King, commander of the ...fleet, to air their views on the ..."urgent necessity of drafting ...fathers."

Senator F. H. LaGuardia of New ...York City was scheduled as a wit...ness and committee members also ...have invited Bernard M. Baruch, ...advisor to War Mobilization Di...rector James F. Byrnes, to testify.

Opponents of the Wheeler bill confidently expected Marshall and King to deal the measure a death blow.

With debate scheduled to begin tomorrow or Wednesday, leaders said a final vote probably could be reached late in the week.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) has announced he will offer an amendment providing that fathers under 30 years old must be taken first.

New Drives Due in Pacific As Lae Falls To Allies

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The Red drums continue to roll out their message of the smashing of Hitler's greatest battle-line, and still more of the house that Adolf built on the Mediterranean shore has collapsed over the week-end, but we shouldn't let these events in neighboring Europe blind us to the significance of General MacArthur's brilliant coup in the capture of the Jap base of Lae on the fetid island of New Guinea half way round the the globe.

As the crystal ball reads, the conquest of Lae and its brother base of Salamaua presages important developments in the near future. I think we can begin to look for another big naval and air engagement to grow out of the present situation.

Further indication that we are witnessing the beginning of a new phase of allied offensive in the South Pacific is seen in the attack by strong American naval forces at the week-end on Tarawa island in the Gilbert group, and on Naur island west of the Gilberts. The waters of the South Pacific are beginning to boil.

President Touches Subject

President Roosevelt in his message to congress called pointed attention to the fact that the position "has become a threat on our part against the Japanese in the seas that lie north of the Solomons and north of New Guinea." MacArthur having personally directed this fresh operation against New Guinea, part of the time from a Flying Fortress over the smoking-hot jungles, also has said that the Lae victory is a serious blow to the Japs.

"With God's help we are making our way back," he said in a special announcement. He of course had reference to the Philippines, which he has sworn to redeem.

Now that's strong testimony, coming as it does from the commander in chief in Washington, and his captain in the Far Pacific. and the significance of it is this. The New Guinae coast on which Lae is situated (please get out the maps!) lies close to the island of New Britain where the Japs have their powerful base of Rabaul. This base is the key to all the islands which they hold in the New Guinea and Solomons area.

Lae gives MacArthur a springboard from which to strike at Rabaul. Important as Rabaul is, MacArthur already is looking across it to another much bigger prize some 800 miles farther north. That's the island of Truk where the Nipponese have the most powerful naval base of their mandated island group. The waters of that stronghold are headquarters for a big part of the Mikado's fleet which isn't in home waters.

Truk Is Strategic

Possession of the strategic island of Truk—which we propose to have—will put us in a highly favorable position for naval operations toward the Philippines, the East Indies and Japan herself. But capture of Truk must mean another great naval battle, unless the little men of Nippon run way.

The United States Navy is eager for a showdown, but the Japs have shown little eagerness for another major clash with Uncle Sam's fleet. Still, that battle is bound to come. When it does it's likely to fairly well settle the naval argument outside Japan's home waters where they are holding the fleet as a vital protection for their tiny island kingdom. In this connection it's important to note that the Japs have been steadily slipping in both naval and air strength, as they haven't been able to replace the great losses which we have inflicted on them.

It isn't unlikely that the offensive which is steadily growing in the southwest Pacific may be coordinated with the projected drive against Burma. Mr. Roosevelt in his message reaffirmed that "after a long period of defensive strategy in Burma, we are determined to take the offensive there." At the best, a major amphibious assault on Burma can't be expected for some weeks yet, since the monsoon season with its deluge of rain is only now coming to a close. Once the dry weather arrives, it still will take much time to get a great expedition under way.

One would expect that under normal conditions Lord Louis Mountbatten, commander of the Burma show, and General MacArthur would coordinate their efforts, so as to split the Japanese naval and air forces.

WAR LOAN

division of the Marion County War Finance committee.

At Two-Thirds Mark

Meanwhile, the national campaign, before week-end reports had been received, reached the two-thirds mark with approximately $10,000,000,000 raised and Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau urging the nationwide campaign organization to think of the $5,000,000,000 yet to be raised rather than the amount already sold.

As the national campaign rolled on, leaders in the Washington and state headquarters in Cleveland urged the public at large to realize that the war, although developing in favor of the allies, is not won and a big job remains to be done.

A steadily rising wave of optimism based on the careless belief that the war is already won will bring about the cruel and unnecessary deaths of thousands of Americans in uniform on the battlefield.

This in substance is the warning voiced by Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox addressed to the people personally.

"Any relaxation on the home front now that Americans are invading enemy territory will be tragic, he declard. "No matter how many War Bonds you have already bought, you cannot do enough to back up the invasion. Invasion is the deadliest, the costliest of military tactics. We are still at the outer edges of the Hitler and Hirohito fortresses. The Third War Loan, is a forthright test of your ability to come through when your boys need you most."

La Rue Auction Total $75,000

A bond auction netting approximately $60,000 in war bonds wound up the annual fall festival in LaRue Saturday night, Dwight Sager, head of the committee in charge of arrangements, reported today. This makes a total of $75,000 in bonds netted during the three day festival. Thursday night bond sales amounted to $7,000 and Friday night the figure was $8,000.

At Saturday night's auction, a turkey sold three times for $1,000 and a fourth time for $1,400. R. E. White of Marion, county Third War Loan chairman, had to pay $1,200 for a crate in which to take home a pig he had bought for $800. When the auctioneers, Lewis Wickersham of Marion and B. F. Thomas of Plain City, ran out of material for sale and the enthusiasm was still high, a light bulb was taken out of a socket in the grandstand and sold for $250. Two silver dollars brought $300 each, and a $2 bill belonging to Mr. Wickersham went to the highest bidder for $300.

Auctioneers for Thursday and Friday nights were John Pfarr, John Dutton, Gus Detwiler and Holmes Lingo.

The sales were sponsored by the Clarence Phillipi Post No. 101 of the American Legion at LaRue.

MOVIE

third 1943 meeting, was watched by nearly 1,000 persons and was the largest single attendance of the three-day overcoat event. Sundays' crowd was estimated at around 1,500.

Weather Right

Both Saturday and Sunday were described by the movie makers as ideal days for filming in technicolor. The movie company was at work shortly after 8 a. m. Saturday and continued until about 3 p. m. In the morning additional barn scenes were filmed and a few close-ups around the stables were also made. In the afternoon the camera crews filmed scenes of the racing program.

Yesterday morning all but a handful of the 94 persons with the company were at the fairgrounds before 9 o'clock. First scenes were photographed at 9:15 and "shooting" continued uninterrupted until after 12 noon. Capitalizing on the fine weather conditions, Director Hathaway ordered a short lunch period and resumed operation of the cameras at 1 p. m. The company ceased operations short after 4 p. m.

In Driver Roles

In scenes filmed yesterday were Actors Ward Bond, Lon McCallister and Noble "Kid" Chissell, who play the parts of race drivers in the harness racing production. Although not scheduled to work yesterday Walter Brennan, Charles Dingle, Jeanne Crain, Willie Best and George Reed, all members of the cast, were on hand at the grandstand. June Haver and Robert Condon were the only members of the cast not present.

At the conclusion of yesterday's work Director Hathaway expressed appreciation to the 110 extras who were at the fairgrounds Friday, Saturday and Sunday. He said their cooperation was perfect and would add greatly to the success of the production. A similar staff would be needed for the three remaining days in which the company will be located here, he said.

Today's Schedule

He briefly outlined today's shooting schedule, which, he said, would begin with shooting additional barn scenes. He said the second camera unit would be at work for the next three days in filming more scenes of the big race which will be won by Sparke Thornton (Lon McCallister). The start and finish of the three heats in the big race were among scenes filmed yesterday by both camera crews.

MOSCOW, Sept. 20—U. S. Ambassador William H. Standley departed suddenly from Moscow by plane yesterday and an official announcement said he was enroute to Washington for consultations. There was little belief here, however, that he would return. The admiral, who is 71, had not planned to spend another winter in Russia unless his presence was considered absolutely necessary.

Sec. Knox Predicts New Nazi Sub Onslaught

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland, Sept. 20—Though the German submarine menace has been checked, there are indications that the Nazis are preparing new onslaughts upon allied Atlantic convoy routes, says U. S. Navy Secretary Frank Knox.

Knox made this statement in a brief address yesterday at the American naval base here during a ceremony in which the secretary of the Navy's flag was presented in recognition of the fact that 90 per cent of the personnel has participated in the war, bond drive.

New U. S. Flying Ace Reported from Pacific

By The Associated Press

U. S. HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, Sept. 20—A new American flying ace has emerged from heavy raids on Japanese bases in the Solomons with a record of shooting down four Zeros in a single engagement.

Marine Major Gregory Boyington, 30, of Okanogan, Wash., accomplished the feat last Thursday as almost 150 Dauntless dive bombers and Avenger Torpedo bombers, escorted by fighters, raided the Buffalo airdrome on Bougainville island. He now has 11 victories to his credit, and becomes one of the leading aces in the South Pacific.

Legion To Insist On Strong U. S. Forces

By The Associated Press

OMAHA, Sept. 20—The American Legion silver anniversary convention, opening tomorrow, evidently will be asked to continue the traditional legion advocacy of military might for the United States second to none, regardless of any post-war plan of international cooperation.

The trend toward insistence upon unbeatable American military strength after the war was apparent today in expressions by Legion leaders and in the subject matter of some of the 700 resolutions under pre-convention consideration by various committees.

U. S. NAVAL FORCE LASHES JAP BASES

By The Associated Press

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Sept. 20 — America's growing naval strength has lashed out again and in force against the outer fringe of Japan's zone of conquest in the Pacific, striking the enemy-held Tarawa and Nauru islands in prolonged attack.

The simultaneous assaults, made along the line of the equator some 2,000 statute miles southwest of Hawaii, began Saturday night (east longitude time) and carried well into the following day.

Their exact nature was not disclosed but the assumption was that they were spearheaded by carrier-borne torpedo and dive bombers such as raided Marcus island to the northwest on Sept. 1.

"Strong Pacific ocean area forces today conducted a heavy raid on the Japanese bases on Tarawa island in the northern Gilbert group and on Nauri island to the west of the Gilbert group," said a communique issued by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet.

"These operations were carried out according to plan during the night preceding and for a good portion of the day of Sept. 19."

War Era Movies To Be Preserved

By The United Press

WASHINGTON—All these war movies we have been seeing lately are not going to be thrown into the discard as soon as they have fulfilled their immediate mission. The Library of Congress has arranged for all commercial films of historical or social significance to be deposited in its archives for future reference.

Under an agreement with the Museum of Modern Art in New York City, the Library will receive 104 films and portions of films released from May 1, 1942, to April 30, 1943. These films were selected by the Museum of Modern Art under a three-year grant made in 1942 by the Rockefeller Foundation to the Library of Congress. The museum for the past seven years has been selecting United States and foreign films of historical significance for its archives.

Of the 104 films and portions of films, the largest group is the newsreels, which cover, week by week, world events from May 22, 1942, through April 27, 1943. Newsreels of actual bombings and troop landings, of the famous Roosevelt-Churchill conference at Casablanca, and of significant events on the home front are typical of the selection.

Although the feature films were selected on the basis of box-office popularity, "Mrs. Miniver," "Yankee Doodle Dandee" and other popular motion pictures are listed among those of documentary significance. ("Desert Victory," "Random Harvest" and "The Human Comedy" had not been officially released when this year's selections were made.) Other movies which your grandchildren may have an opportunity to see are "The Pied Piper," "Midway," "Wake Island," "Journey for Margaret," "Casablanca," "Hitler's Children," "The Moon Is Down," and "Cabin in the Sky," which were popular with 1942-43 moviegoers.

The 104 films include five different types: Newsreels and news-related films, documentary films of significance to the social and political historian, films making technological progress in the motion pictures, animated cartoons which reflect the common imaginative life of the period, and films of scientific or geographical interest.

ALLIED WAR FLEET STEAMS UP AGAIN

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 20—An allied war fleet was reported steaming up the Aegean sea off the west coast of Turkey today, stirring new talk of an imminent lunge into the Balkans.

Italian refugees reaching Turkey reported the presence of the large concentration of war vessels and London morning newspapers quoted them as saying allied forces had occupied the island of Castelrosso, most southerly of the Dodecanese group four miles from the Turkish coast and 90 miles east of Rhodes.

These refugee reports were linked in London with similar accounts four days of allied occupation of the islands of Samos, Leros, and Cos (Coo), all in the Dodecanesens north of Rhodes, and with the reported departure of Britain's Ninth army from Middle East bases.

Rhodes itself, largest island in the group, was reported last week to be under German control after the Nazis overcame the Italian garrison in several days of bloody fighting.

Refugees estimated that 25,000 Italians on Rhodes were outmaneuvered and crushed by 5,000 Germans supported by divebombers from German-held Crete to the southwest.

Ferguson Rejects Voucher for Liquor

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 20—State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson today refused to approve a voucher for $1,000,000 which he said was issued by the state liquor department to cover a purchase of spirits for future delivery.

The voucher was made payable to the First National Bank, of Chicago, a depository for Foster & Co., New York, a liquor dealer.

Ferguson said the money represented "an advance to New York dealers for whisky which is yet to be bottled and delivered in cases by still another company over a 14-month period."

Ferguson said OPA ceiling prices on whisky covered by warehouse receipts which were advanced by the dealer as collateral represented only one-third of the face value of the check.

Harding Outplays Tygers To Win 6-0

By CHARLES ELLIOTT

Striking with a consistent, rattling ground attack, Marion Harding's Presidents staged a six-halved 70-yard fourth quarter drive to score a more polished but outfought 6-0 victory over Tyger eleven, 6-0, before 3,613 Pressers on the playground at Harding stadium Saturday night. Some 2,500 fans witnessed the intra-city battle.

Instead of following the tremendous Harding pay-dirt push with equally long but more spectacular Mansfield drive, each team was content to punt on the Proxy two-yard line when the whistle for the final period rang out and thus end Marion-Lee's first [illegible] Tyger threat.

Tyger [illegible] The tenacious Mansfield sparkplug ended with a 56-yard run back of Harding's kick subsequent to the locals' only score. Except of the [illegible] the game's longest [illegible] McBride. Tyger halfback Cosby was downed on the Proxy 45.

The Harding touchdown was no longer a mile less than five minutes remaining in the ball game. The Tygers, fatally passing from hedge into stuff were not able to [illegible] the double stripe of Harding ahead of the contest's [illegible]

Bob Lee, Harding quarterback or blocking back, who nearly [illegible] designed to [illegible] offensive work, [illegible] with the chief executive's touchdown [illegible] of Warhoff. Proxy fourth down of the time of registering of the six points and the Presidents had [illegible] been halted back by the stiffening Tyger line after they had garnered a first down on the three-yard marker.

Straight power necks and off-tackle slants which featured the 70-yard Harding drive, did not seem sufficient for a Harding touchdown against the compact, unrelenting Tyger forward wall. The sneak by Lee, therefore, proved to be just the type of rush needed to pound into the end zone. Mansfield, of course, was expecting a drive by either Jack Koeppen or Stew Young, Harding backs, who between them did three-fourths of the Harding ball-toting Saturday night. They were simply caught napping when Lee stealthily zipped through.

The Team To Beat

According to advance stories of numerous sports writers throughout the state the winner of the Harding-Mansfield game would become the team to beat in northwestern Ohio. Hard as it is to believe, the terrifically underrated Presidents merit that perhaps too premature honor.

The Harding win was in first place a tribute to the spirit of Harding's squad, not merely the starting eleven. Moreover, it was an actual testimonial to the coaching system of Vic Dorris, head President mentor and his assistant, Joe Petrich. Both of these gentlemen must have something on the ball to have whipped the Harding-ites from the questionable, green pigskinners they were Sept. 1 to the hard-smashing, smooth-functioning unit of gridders they were against the outplayed and favored Tygers.

Stew Young and Jack Koeppen, popularly known by team-mates as the "Gold Dust Twins" shouldered a great bulk of the ball-carrying burden against the Tygers and performed like seasoned veterans, although Koeppen, a senior, did not even win a letter last season. Young is one of the fourth Proxy lettermen from the N.C.O. championship team of 1942. Both of these boys were responsible for defense-willing power bucks that sapped the energy and murh of the usefulness of the Mansfield line.

However Russ Midlam, 140-President right halfback, can not be overlooked when bouquets are tossed to Proxy players. He hoofed off more than one good gain against the Tygers and was prominent in setting up the Harding touchdown. He also performed well in the capacity of pass receiver.

Clears the Way

Bob Lee, in addition to scoring the President touchdown, was even more valuable as a [illegible] Lee, only a junior, has set many a clear-cut pathway for Koeppen, Young, Koeppen or Midlam to [illegible] thru-awarde runs.

But the Harding line was [illegible] It had the upper hand over Tyger defense for most of the game and continually outcharged the Mansfielders. Enjoying [illegible] few pound-weight advantage the seven Presidents who play [illegible] the glory is little but the work is drudgery were in [illegible] of the opposing forward wall.

Capt. Charles Fazo, senior tackle, was singled out in post-game confabs as the number one President. He [illegible] countless [illegible] and also led through Tyger defenders on many occasions. Elvin Beach, 170-pound [illegible] played brilliantly both in backing up the line on defense and also in handling the punting. Pierce Jack Beam, senior end, was another Mansfield nemesis on defense and offense. Harding guards, Charles Strobel, junior, and Dick Lemmitzer and Jim Bowers, both seniors, were seldom fazed by their foes.

The starting eleven players on both teams had to possess quotas of stamina that seemed to border on superman levels. Eight Harding players and seven Mansfield players played the entire four quarters, 48 minutes of gruelling, bitter football. The President backfield stayed in for the whole contest.

Saturday's night victory for the Proxy represented something of revenge for them or rather for Harding teams of another era. The last time Mansfield and Marion high school teams met was in 1938 and in that season, the Tygers victimized the then weak Presidents. Next year, Marion is scheduled to journey to Mansfield to complete the two-year athletic agreement.

Dorris Happy

Vic Dorris, Proxy coach said after the contest, "All I can say, we've got a sweet bunch of boys. Mansfield had more polish than we did but we had the spirit."

The statistics are proof enough that Harding was the better team. A total of 13 first downs were registered by the Presidents, five in the first half and eight in the second half. Mansfield made six, four and two in the respective halves. Total net yardage attributed to Harding amounted to 169 while Mansfield's total was 107.

Harding's uninterrupted surge to the lone touchdown actually started near the end of the third period when Jack Koeppen grubbed a Mansfield punt by End Bill Lewis on his own 30 and jaunted back to the 34. Young then was hit by the entire center of the Mansfield line on the 33 for a yard loss. At that point the third quarter ended.

Young compensated for that deficit with a right end run behind extremely helpful blocking to the Harding 43, a gain of nine yards. Seat back Midlam then raced around the opposite flank to the Mansfield 48 for a first down. Fast-breaking Koeppen blasted to the Tyger 40 on a center buck. Another first down was racked up by Young when followed with a four-yard line plunge to the Tyger 36. The 168-pound Young followed his gain

1,000 See Windup of Harness Racing Season in County

Marion wrapped up its 1943 harness racing program with a bang-up 12-dash card witnessed by nearly 1,000 race enthusiasts Saturday afternoon at the Marion County fairground.

Copping the featured event, the Tranquillity Century-Fox $1,000 purse for two-year-old trotters, was captured by Fighting Scott, a bay colt owned by E. F. Gray of Bellaire, O., and driven by Charles Fleming, one of the nationally-known Pat Fleming of Geneva, N. Y.

The Yeager-owned colt far shaded second choice Pearl Harbor, owned by Leo J. Colson of Orrville, O., and driven by Amandus Farmer won the second heat, after taking a third and opening heat in the "rubber" flurries. Chalice won by a length and a half over Pearl Harbor.

Saturday's over $1,000 race — the Marion County Commissioners' purse for 3-year-old trotters — also went to three-heat winner. Eddie Warren, Fox boy, 2:11¾, captured the event. Bob Sheppard, Fleet Egan's harness performer, won the third heat.

But the big event of the day was the 15 class pace which brought together eight sensational performers. Torrid Zone, owned by Robert P. Cooney of Amsterdam, O., and driven by Earl Roush of Canton, won the event by finishing first in both the first and second heats and second in the final dash.

In winning the opening dashes the Torrid one was clocked in 2:08¾ and 2:07¾, both marks below the meeting's previous time. Son G, driven by Bv Shively of Miami, Okla., won the final dash and in doing so established a new meet mark of 7:07½. This is the fastest mile raced on the fairground twice-around this year.

Only other event on Saturday's program was the 15 class trot, won by Dixie Spencer a brown mare owned and driven by Clint Hodgins of Clondoby, Ont., Canada.

Cardington Wins County Tourney at Green Camp

GREEN CAMP, Sept. 20—Cardington won the baseball tournament which has been in progress at the Green Camp High school diamonds the past several Sundays. Claridon Union defeated the Marion Steam Shovel for the second straight Sunday, 11-9, was downed by the Cardington sluggers 7 to 3 in the payoff tilt.

Cardington sewed up the championship game in two big innings, the top half of the first when they scored four runs on three hits, two bases on balls and an error in the fifth when successive home runs by catcher Graham and W. Crum, first baseman, combined with another hit and a base on balls and batted in six runs for three runs.

Four Runs Across

In the Cardington first inning Harris walked, advanced by Earley's single, both runners advanced as D. Crum went out pitcher Trout to Kawa, first baseman for Claridon, successive singles by Graham and W. Crum and an error by Price, right fielder, and the four big tallies were across the plate.

Claridon in the last half of the first looked as though they were going to make the going tough for the Cardington outfit. Wilson, first man up, walked, Augenstein singled and Trout walked filling the sacks with no one down. Then pitcher Pace took matters in his hand and struck out Dave Kawa, Wilson scored on a fly to centerfield by Moran, Nishimoto was an easy out and the threat was ended.

Claridon's second run came in the third when Wilson got a two-bagger and tallied on Augenstein's single. The last half of the seventh produced the other Claridon tally. Kawa walked, and singles by Moran and Nishimoto sent the big Japanese-American across the platter.

Pace of Cardington struck out 14 of the Claridonites and walked 6. Trout and Kawa, who pitched the last 1 2/3 innings, struck out 4 of the Cardington team and walked 8.

First Game

In the first game of the twin bill Claridon downed Steam Shovel 11-9 getting the pay off tallies in the seventh inning when four runs were scored. Hits by Caskey, Wilson, Augenstein and Moran, coupled with a base on balls and an error accounted for the scores. Claridon scored three runs in the sixth on a three-bagger by Wilson, and a two-bagger by Moran, a single by Mayse and a walk. Claridon also scored two in the first and one run each in the second and third.

The Steam Shovel started off the game as though they were going to get sevence for the defeat handed them last Sunday by the Claridon outfit. Five runs scored in the half inning on three bases on balls and four errors and outfield fly balls. Not a hit was registered in the inning. Three runs came in the fourth on hits by R. Walters, P. Walters, F. Walters and Darnell and an error. The last Shovel run came on a circuit swat by F. Walters in the sixth.

Approximately 300 people witnessed the championship-deciding games.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 20—Disa and data!

Ohio Wesleyan university's coeds are circulating a petition, addressed to the weather man, asking that heavy frost and snow be delayed until after No. 1.

With 1,000 Navy trainees filling Edwards gymnasium, the coed classes in physical education have been shifted to Selby stadium. It was fun, the shorts-clad gals said, cavorting over the football field while balmy breezes blew, but frosty morns have kept the co-eds on the move.

The Delaware university takes over the national guard armory for indoor physical education classes Nov. 1—hence the petition to the weather man.

That Hoosier hot-shot of 1942, Halfback Billy (The Kid) Hillenbrand, who showed Ohio State plenty of ball-toting ability before he and his Indiana mates lost by 32 to 21, is now an Ohio State student. He's in the Army, however, and ineligible for football with the Bucks.

Jack Dugger, last year's third-string tackle, and now first-string end and captain of the youthful Ohio State team, wears contact lenses.

Ohio's 14 colleges which will play football this year had a total record of 66 wins, 44 losses and three ties last season for an average of .600. The 22 teams which have dropped out this campaign wound up a year ago with 75 victories, 67 defeats and 11 ties, for a .528 percentage.

It Sounds Foolish, But Yankees Could Blow Title To Senators

By The Associated Press

It sounds fantastic, but [illegible] at the [illegible] Yankees [illegible] and blow the American league pennant to Washington.

[illegible] by a humiliating margin over the second place Senators and by 14 games over the third place Indians, the Yankees have 14 games to play and the champions [illegible] games.

This would seem a [illegible] but [illegible] during those five [illegible] Yanks [illegible] one of the toughest looks the Yankees have faced this year.

The fact that they [illegible] during at least a [illegible] the title by dropping a [illegible] to the Senators yesterday may [illegible] the turning point. The double loss 3-2 in 10 innings and 6-1, gave the Senators a sweep of the three-game series.

If the Senators [illegible] remaining 12 games, they [illegible] finish the season with 21 wins and victories over the Yankees in 1933. In that year the Yankees would be [illegible] four games from the [illegible] Detroit Tigers, Cleveland Indians, St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox to tie.

If the Cleveland Indians who beat Detroit twice yesterday 1-0 and 6-2, win six of their remaining games while the Senators win 9 of 12 and the Yanks only one of 14, the Tribe would finish on top by half a game.

The National league champions, the St. Louis Cardinals, [illegible] clinched the title Saturday [illegible] beaten twice by the Chicago Cubs, 6-0 and 10-9. The New York Giants took a doubleheader from Brooklyn, 3-1 and 7-4.

JUNIOR HIGH GRID PROGRAM MAPPED

The junior high school football setup for the 1943 season, including the complete schedule, will be mapped at the fall meeting of the Marion Junior High School athletic association at Central Junior High school tonight.

Athletic and faculty representatives from Central, Vernon Heights, and Thomas A. Edison junior highs will be present at the meeting.

Try-outs for the squads of all three city junior highs were held last week and according to latest reports, practicing is progressing "very nicely." Central, the largest of the three junior highs, naturally has the biggest grid roster, which totaled 57 at the conclusion of last week's preliminary drills.

Head junior high football coaches this season are Ralph Kelly at Central, Boo McCracken at Vernon and Ed Cooney at Edison.

This summer Kelly was appointed to succeed Howard Hoffman, assistant Harding High mentor, who resigned to go into restaurant business at Troy. Frank Pierson of Minford, in turn, was selected to replace Kelly at Central. However, about a month after his appointment, Peirson resigned. Therefore, due to the acute manpower shortage, Kelly finally wound up back at Central where he was last spring.

McCracken was head tutor at Central last season but transferred to Vernon during the 1942-43 basketball season. This will make Cooney's second campaign as Edison coach.

Last season, a powerful Edison squad went undefeated to cop the city junior high football crown. From 1939 to 1942, Central's gridders held the title.

Milwaukee Snares Association Title, With Tribe Second

By The Associated Press

The American association lowered the curtain on its regular season yesterday with Milwaukee the champion by a big-game margin and Indianapolis the runner-up by a fractional edge over Columbus. American pace setters on the annual playoffs starting tomorrow.

The first two games in each [illegible] series to be played [illegible] Milwaukee and Indianapolis [illegible] clubs shifting to Columbus on Tuesday for the wind-up. Survivors of the Columbus-Milwaukee and Toledo-Indianapolis sets will meet to decide the association's representative in the little world series against the International league playoff champion.

Milwaukee closed its most successful season in history yesterday with 8-4 and 6-2 wins over the defending AA champion, Kansas City. This double defeat, coupled with St. Paul's two victories over Minneapolis, placed the Blues in a deadlock with the Saints for last place. The Millers barely escaped sharing the cellar by a ½-game margin.

The Saints' 13-9 and 9-3 triumphs over the Millers gave St. Paul its first intercity series from Minneapolis since 1934.

Indianapolis lost twice to fifth-place Louisville, 6-2 and 6-2. Columbus whipped Toledo 5-0 and 4-3.

In the International league semi-playoffs, the Syracuse Chiefs gained a three to two edge over Newark by winning 4-0 yesterday.

At the same time Toronto Leafs were eliminating Montreal, 5-1, with their fourth straight playoff win.

by playing a 7-7 tie with Miami of Ohio.

In addition to Northwestern, four other teams make their debuts Saturday—Iowa at Great Lakes, Notre Dame at Pittsburgh, Ohio State at home against the Iowa Seahawks and Minnesota at home against Missouri.

The eighth game on the schedule sends Wisconsin to Camp Grant.

Notre Dame goes against Pittsburgh in the opener for both clubs in the Smoky City.

Army, regarded as having the best backfield in the east, unfurls its T-minded squad against Villanova, a "Navy" school that mastered Muhlenberg, 55-12, last Saturday; and Navy goes against the officers and cadets of the North Carolina pre-flight team.

In the south, Georgia Tech displays what is expected to be the area's best lineup against North Carolina at Atlanta while Duke, which bruised the Camp Lejeune Marines, 46-0, Saturday, mixes with Richmond in a Southern conference clash. The latter club downed the Richmond air base eleven, 45-0.

STATE-SEA HAWK GAME TOPS CARD

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Sept. 20—Nine of Ohio's 14 football-playing colleges see action this week-end in six games, with Ohio State's clash against Iowa's pre-flight Seahawks headlining the card. The Hawks were 32-13 victors over Illinois in their opener Saturday.

A year ago, in the season's finale, Ohio's Big Ten and national champion Bucks administered a 42-12 beating to the pre-flighters, but the picture has changed since then. The Bucks have five juniors and a flock of 17-year-old freshmen this season, while the pre-flighters are sparked by stars from the collegiate and professional fields.

Along with the Ohio-Iowa tilt, expected to attract more than 20,000 fans, these games are on the Saturday slate:

Baldwin Wallace vs. Case at Cleveland in the Ohio conference inaugural under the lights; DePauw of Indiana at Oberlin; Wooster at Ohio Wesleyan; Indiana's Hanover at Miami, and Bowling Green at Xavier (Cincinnati), in another night tilt.

In Saturday's frays Miami's Redskins gave the dope bucket a kicking by holding Indiana university's Big Ten Hoosiers to a 7-7 deadlock, while Bowling Green wrecked Ohio Wesleyan 18-7 in a battle of V-12 units. The Baldwin Wallace 14-6 loss to Rochester a week ago didn't seem so disastrous after Saturday's set, in which that same Rochester team upset Yale's Bulldogs by 14-12.

Ohio State's coaching staff scouted the Iowa Seahawk-Illinois game Saturday, and since the naval contingent was forced to use practically all its talent and tricks the Bucks should have a fair idea of what they're up against in the curtain raiser.

Opening Fall Meeting Held by Church Group

Mrs. J. R. Folsom of 1177 East Center street, leader of Group No. 7 of the Ladies' Aid society of the First Presbyterian church, was hostess for the opening meeting of the fall and winter season Thursday afternoon at her home. Group singing of a hymn and "America," with Mrs. Folsom at the piano, opened the meeting and preceding a business session Mrs. A. W. Bacon presented the first subject for the year, giving the geneology of Abraham. The members will study outstanding characters of the Old Testament for the coming year. Mrs. S. E. Barlow has served as program chairman for the last three years during which the members completed the study of the New Testament. Mrs. L. O. Magill was named program chairman for the coming year.

Mrs. J. R. Bishop conducted the devotions and business included plans for a fund-raising event to take place in the near future. Mrs. E. E. Mason will serve as chairman for the benefit.

Later in the afternoon the members and guests were invited to the dining room where Mrs. D. H. Lincoln presided. The table appointments were in a patriotic theme with a centerpiece of red gladioli, white snapdragons and blue bachelor buttons in a low silver flower urn, and blue tapers in silver holders. Flowers throughout the rooms provided a colorful setting.

During the social hour Mrs. R. L. Case entertained with piano numbers including "Valse Arabesque," Lask, and a composition from Dvorak's "Old World Symphony."

Guests included Mrs. M. B. Dickerson of Washington, D. C., a charter member, Mrs. Charles H. Shaffstall of Cleveland, Mrs. L. F. DaGaneau and Mrs. J. E. Crawmer.

GALION—A daughter was born Saturday at Galion City hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Don Highly of Caledonia. The mother is the former Helen Ott.

Nelson Bests Wood, Looks for New Foes

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 20 — Byron Nelson, Toledo Inverness club professional, is looking for new fields to conquer and it wouldn't be surprising if he had his eye on the winner of the Sam Byrd-Harold McSpaden match in Chicago next month, a spectacle to be produced by George S. May, the Mr. Big of midwestern golf.

Nelson tied into Craig Wood, duration national open champion, over the week end in a 72-hole challenge match for the unofficial world's match play championship, and wound it up at the end of 58 holes beating the Mamaroneck, N. Y. star, 15 and 13.

It was the worst defeat ever suffered by a champion since 1928 when Arnold Compston walloped Walter Hagen, 18 and 17, shortly before the Haig won the British open.

HARDING

up with a 10-yard off-tackle smash to the 26, inches shy of a first down. Midlam, however, made the first down on the next play with an end run to the 23. Young could make only a yard to the Mansfield 22 on the next play but then broke for six yards to 16. Koeppen bucked to the 14, again a hair-breadth from a first. Young cracked to the 13 for the first down succeeded by a Midlam run to the eight. Young then pounded to the four, which made it third down and one. Koeppen powered to the three to mark up the first. Midlam then was smeared for a yard loss by stellar wingman Lewis. Young, going off tackle, was then hit by five Tygers on the 2½ stripe. Koeppen on third down, butted to the one foot line. Lee, on the desperation sneak, went across. Capt. Fazio's attempted placement try was blocked.

Kicks to 18

Fazio, tried to boot out of bounds on the kick-off but missed fire with McBride grabbing the oval on the Tyger 18. He streaked down the western sidelines for 56 yards in a dazzling streak, highlighted by superb downfield blocking. Young and several other Prexies finally downed him on the 26. Rowland Schmidt, Tyger halfback, was slapped down on the 24 by Bob Lee on a off-tackle slant. A pass by Bill Dent, Tyger quarterback, was muffed by the intended receiver, Schmidt, however, on the next play, interrupted to the Prexy 14 for a first down. Two minutes and 10 seconds remained in the game. After a foiled running play, Dent passed to Parry, fullback, on the Harding 10. Parry, behind good screening interference ran to seven. Parry drove to five, making it fourth and one. He fumbled on this play but recovered himself.

With only a few seconds remaining, Parry was stopped short of the goal but ahead of the first requirement on the two yard line. Harding supporters, were then relieved when the pistol shot boomed out.

Prior to the last stanza neither team had advanced past its opponents' 19. Harding ultimately was halted on the Mansfield 19 midway in the third period after the Presidents had received the opening kick-off and driven 46 yards before being halted.

The Tyger kick-off at the beginning of the second half went out of bounds. Mansfield was assessed a penalty for delaying the game and the ball rested automatically on the Prexy 40. Three rushes by Harding and an offside penalty against Mansfield advanced the ball to the Tyger 43, where another first down was chalked up for Marion. Versatile Koeppen, on third down on the Tyger 43 and badly rushed by the Mansfield line nonetheless completed a flank pass to Midlam on the Tyger 29 for a first down. Three Harding tries at the Tyger line wound up only on the took over possession of the pigskin.

Harding Passes

The first half was mainly a feeling period for both teams Neither squad was able to get within its foes 25 during this half of the tilt. One of the more sensational plays during this practically eventless initial half came in the first quarter when Young passed to Midlam in the flank on the Mansfield 37 for a 17 yard net gain. The Presidents could not get past the 32, however, on that series of downs. Later in the first period, Harding again was frustrated on the Tyger 28, where the invaders took over on downs. Koeppen's buck fell short of needed yardage.

In the second chukker, Mansfield held the ball for quite a long spell. The Tygers drove from their own 29 to the Harding 26, where the Prexies got the pigskin on downs. This was a 45 yard futile assault.

Mansfield players were versatile and figurative jacks-of-all Mansfield 18, where the visitors trades Saturday night. Joe Parry, who started at guard, wound up playing in the fullback slot. Sam Musille, one of the Tygers' two subs, alternated at times with Joe Komjenovich at end and at other instances with his brother Dominic Musille, in the backfield.

Irish Krieger, who refereed the Harding-Tyger engagement, is a well-known Big Ten ref. He also is a member of the United States football rules committee.

Jack Guy, who originally was named by Coach Paul Snyder to play quarter back for the Tygers, was not able to perform because of a leg injury. He is scheduled to go into Marines next week and did not want to aggravate the injury in a grid tussle. His place was filled capably by Bill Dent.

The lineups:

Marion Harding 6		Mansfield 0
Dillinger	LE	Komjenovich
Fazio	LT	Jacobs
Strobel	LG	Parry
Beach	C	Miller
Lemnitzer	RG	Schafer

BADOGLIO

cooperating side by side with the Anglo-Americans who are now accepting our assistance in the task of driving the Germans from the country."

Hint of Future

These and other sections of his speech were the first public avowals from any source indicating that the Italians probably will be accepted as full-fledged allies of the United Nations in the campaign to drive the Germans out of Italy.

"Moreover the British and Americans, our erstwhile comrades of the Piave (in the first World war) and Vittorio Veneto did not hesitate to state that their ultimate aim is the rebirth of a strong and united Italy," Badoglio continued, "and that they will not withdraw their help from us when the time comes to repair the havoc of war and to reconstruct our future."

The marshal conceded that when the armistice was concluded "it was our intention to lay down our arms and abstain entirely from acts of hostility against anybody."

"Even after the Germans began to attack us we were patient and did not fight back, hoping these attacks were only isolated incidents and not the result of a premeditated plan of aggression against us," he added. "Soon, however, we realized that whole German divisions were attacking our troops in Italy and outside Italy, were forcibly occupying our cities, harbors and airdromes, were pillaging our stores and the possessions of our citizens, while the German air force was bombing our ships."

Encourages Guerrillas

He urged Italians, where outnumbered, to use "the terrible weapon of guerrilla warfare," and gave them instructions "to escape the country, cut communications, blow up bridges and dumps, attack isolated men and equipment. And above all do not give up, do not lose heart—period."

Badoglio's declaration was both the first urging Italian soldiers and civilians to attack Germans wherever they find them, and the first urging his followers to make war upon whatever Italian troops align themselves with the Nazis.

His original proclamation of Sept. 8 announcing the armistice called upon Italians merely to yield to invasion by the Americans and British and only to fight against attack from any other quarter.

Badoglio escaped from Rome a few hours before the Germans took over the city and made his way to allied territory by automobile and ship, an American official who talked with the Italian chieftain disclosed today.

The American, who cannot be more definitely identified for the moment, said Badoglio gave this version of his escape.

After announcing the armistice terms to the Italian people on Sept. 8, Badoglio realized that the German troops around the capital planned to take it over and to take himself and King Vittorio Emanuele into custody.

Badoglio and his military advisers took a large number of government automobiles and made up a caravan in the early hours before dawn on Sept. 9. The caravan left Rome at 5 a. m. and sped to a port on the Italian coast.

Drivers' License Deadline Near

The Marion office of the bureau of motor vehicles will be open from 7 to 9 p. m. Tuesday and Thursday nights this week for the issuance of drivers' licenses, it was announced today by James E. Messenger, deputy registrar. The time for using the present licenses expires at midnight, Sept. 30.

Approximately 3,700, or about half the total for the county, have been issued to date. He is asking that motorists get their licenses as early as possible and avoid a congestion the last of the month.

Recruits for Co. H Urged To Register at Meeting Tonight

Recruits are being sought for enrollment in Co. H, Marion company in the Ohio State guard, as the organization gets underway for its fall and winter activities tonight at the Armory, Capt. Carl Ebert said today. To bring the company up to regulation strength, five good replacements are needed, he said.

Men and boys interested in enrolling in the company are asked to attend the company school tonight at the Armory. The training is of value to young men anticipating a call to service and also to older men eligible for the draft, the officers explain.

The school of instruction, held on Monday nights, includes the study of military tactics, message writing and other activities and the drill on Tuesday nights includes a recreational period when basketball and volley ball are played, and a half-hour discussion of drill work.

Enlistments also will be taken at the drill period on Tuesday night but men planning to enroll are asked, if possible, to register tonight.

over all islands immediately off the port.

"As we control all the heights of the Sorrento peninsula we undoubtedly control all of the peninsula since it is unlikely the Germans would stay in the lower parts just to be destroyed," the spokesman declared.

Amalfi and other towns on the south side of the peninsula were declared in allied hands.

From the Sorrento heights the American and British soldiers can look down into the gulf of Naples and Naples itself about 12 miles—easy artillery range — across the bay.

In an order of the day last week, General Clark placed Naples first on the list of cities he predicted the Fifth and Eighth armies would take.

CHRISTMAS MAY SEEM FAR AWAY here in the United States, but it will seem very empty to many American boys overseas unless the folks at home get their Christmas parcels in the mail soon—between Sept. 15 and Oct. 15, to be exact. The Army has announced that holiday packages for its men abroad will be accepted for mailing between those dates, but they must not weigh more than five pounds. Gifts for sailors, Marines and Coast Guardsmen can be sent as late as Nov. 1. As for the selection of the presents, the map above shows what the servicemen themselves, stationed throughout the world, have said they would like to have for Christmas.

STOCKS SCORE ANOTHER GAIN

Prices Stay on Recovery Side for Fifth Day in Succession.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 20 — The stock market scored another tally on the recovery side today, the fifth in a row.

The direction was upward from the start in relatively active dealings. There were subsequent slow-downs as profit taking, which was fairly well absorbed, made its appearance. Fractional plus signs were the rule although scattered blue ships were up 1 to 2 or more points.

Issues getting into new high ground for 1943 included Sears Roebuck, U. S. Rubber and Goodrich. Favored also were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Du Pont, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, American Can, Santa Fe, Eastman Kodak, Philip Morris, United Aircraft, Douglas Aircraft, Western Union, J. I. Case and International Harvester.

COAST GUARD KEEPS EYE ON BIG LAKE

By The United Press

COULEE LAKE COAST GUARD BASE, Wash.—A Coast Guard station, located 300 miles from the Pacific ocean, has been established on the edge of one of the world's largest man-made lakes to safeguard the waters surrounding Grand Coulee dam.

Tucked among the rolling, brown hills of eastern Washington, the station is one of the most unusual installations in the 13th Naval District.

The coast guardsmen here maintain a constant patrol of the reservoir surrounding this key power plant, and attention has been focused on the need for vigilance by the recent RAF raids on the Moehne and Eder dams in Germany. Vital industries in five states draw power from Coulee and Bonneville dam, located farther downstream on the Columbia river, and damage to either would be a severe blow to war production.

The Coast Guard's patrol force here, under the command of Chief Boatswain's Mate Gilbert S. Peterson, is doing a typical Coast Guard job, despite the fact that rolling hill must take the place of billowing surf.

The unit is self-sustaining, including cooks, mechanics, radiomen, seamen, boatswain's mates, electricians and other ratings.

Regular sea-going patrols cover every square foot of this lake, which extends 152 miles to the Canadian border. A number of heavy tug-type boats formerly used in the dam construction project now wear wartime dress, but when speed is required many Coast Guard reserve cruisers are on hand.

The reserve cruisers, formerly used by huntsmen and sportsmen, now are armed and ready for action with the Coast Guard.

Base Built on Barges

The base itself is a floating unit, built up on a series of construction barges. It consists of mess hall, offices, radio headquarters, sick bay, petty officer quarters and crew quarters. Life at the base is regulated as if the men were aboard ship. The men adhere to strict military schedules, but during off hours they are able to fish, hunt and swim nearby.

"We feel important guarding the waters surrounding the world's largest power project," Chief Peterson said. "We share our duty with federal guards who have jurisdiction over the dam itself. The Coast Guard patrols the lake and lands a boat wherever needed."

Peterson's crew also has its deadbeats and floating debris, and act as custodians of the lake itself. Cattle and horses, straying too near the shoreline, sometimes cause their owners trouble, as they must pay a fine of $5 per head before they are released.

Old-Time Actress in Second Century

By The United Press

TILLAMOOK, Ore. — Elizabeth Barker Percy has started on her second 100 years with the grace with which she once played Pitti Sing in Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado."

She was 100 years old May 21. As musician and actress she came to know the great of England and the U. S. for half a century. She laughs now as she remembers falling flat on her face the first time she played Pitti Sing before royalty.

"It was a terrific entrance," she smiled. "But remember that Pitti Sing was something of a clown, so I saved my face by clowning the act for a few minutes.

"I think only the director realized the fall was accidental, and he told me afterward—'from now on play Pitti Sing right side up.'"

She was christened Elizabeth Barker Puenjer in Manchester. Finding herself a wide waif 20, Finding herself a widow at 23, a job as pianist at the London Savoy theater in 1874. There, while playing rehearsals for "The Mikado" she told the director that his "Three little maids from school" weren't making their entrance with becoming daintiness.

"Supposing you show us how," the director asked.

She did, and the next day was ordered to see "Mr. Sullivan." He wanted to know where she learned about Japanese walking.

"From books and pictures," she answered. Sullivan asked her for other ideas and she demonstrated. After the conference the maestro told her she would play Pitti Sing, the feminine lead in "The Mikado."

She was married to Thomas Percy of Manchester, a cotton mill expert, in 1864, and traveled with him to various parts of the world, including Mexico. There she met Doroteo Villa, who became the notorious Pancho Villa of revolutionary fame.

She cultivated a friendship with Villa, who liked her biscuits. Mr. Percy died in Mexico City and Mrs. Percy moved to Tillamook.

She remembers sliding down a staircase railing as a child of six and landing in a jump on a bearskin rug at the feet of a stranger, who picked her up to see if she were injured. He was Charles Dickens.

"I marvel that I have lived so long," Mrs. Percy commented. "I have no formula for doing it, but living has been wonderful and I'm happy here in Tillamook. You know, it reminds me of Ireland, and that's why I like it."

LITTLE ACTIVITY ON GRAIN BOARD TODAY

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 20—All grains held within a narrow range today with trading activity on a reduced scale. Strength at Winnipeg, where new seasonal highs were scored by wheat, had little influence on the local market.

Traders said there was little incentive to buy wheat because prices on the cash grain are hovering around levels approximately equal to flour ceilings. At the same time, they said, the heavy demand for the grain from all sources prevented any hasty liquidation.

President Roosevelt awarded him the distinguished flying cross for his act. Last Saturday, 24 hours before his death, he was awarded the Legion of Honor medal.

Funeral services will be tomorrow at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

BEFORE answering Ronald's agitated question, I crossed to him, put a reassuring hand on his shoulder and bent over the desk, sure that Mary and Noel, already absorbed in conversation, could not possibly hear what I was saying.

"Yes, Father is coming over right away, Ronald," I said, "but—"

Having His Difficulties

"And he'll want this letter finished when he does come," he burst out, "and I'm having an awful time writing it! I don't know how to tell Carolyn about the woman coming down with her and all. I don't know how she'll take it."

Subconsciously he had lowered his own voice to a murmur, and I put a bit of emphasis into my own quiet response.

"No, he won't expect it to be finished, I am sure," I said. "There isn't so much hurry about the letter anyway, just so it makes the afternoon mail. You can take it over to the main postoffice yourself and put a special delivery stamp on it.

"Father is coming over about those 'personals' to Marion," I went on, "so he won't be thinking about the letter. If he sees you're at work on it, and that you'll be finished in a reasonable time, he'll be satisfied. But if you've made a beginning, I'm sure you can finish very quickly, perhaps before he leaves. It should be very short, you know—just long enough to make Carolyn understand that she is to hold herself in readiness to come down. I shouldn't worry about the phraseology. Use your usual affectionate phrases at the beginning and the end, but for the rest of it, don't try to gloss over anything. Just say you're writing the letter at my father's request and make it very brief and business-like."

Ronald Is Relieved

Ronald drew a long breath of relief.

"You always cut the Gordian knot, Aunt Madge," he said, gratefully, "and I'll hurry things up. But"—he hesitated—"would it be possible for me to see those 'personals'?"

"Later, yes," I decided promptly. "If you don't actually see them, I can recite them for you, word for word. But there isn't time now. Father will be here at any moment, and he must not be kept waiting, you know."

"Yes, I know," he agreed, dully; then turned feverishly back to his writing. I pressed my hand encouragingly on his shoulder as I turned away.

"That's a good soldier, Ronald!" I whispered, and his fervent answering whisper, "Thank you!" had just been uttered when the knocker on the door heralded my father's arrival.

The "Chief" came in as hurriedly as I ever had seen him.

"I've sent for Reed, my 'odd jobs' man," he said. "He'll take the personals around to the newspaper offices. I suppose you've made only one draft?" he went on, with an air of hoping we had made more.

"Only one," I said firmly, "for we had to have your approval. But I can help Mary make copies."

His brows cleared, and he reached for the paper which Mary was holding out to him. When he had read it through, he handed it back to her and spoke with definite approval.

"Very good, indeed!" he commended. "There won't have to be a word changed."

"Thanks to Aunt Madge," Mary said, quick to be sure that the credit was to be properly awarded.

"But who translated the code?" I flashed back.

Father Will Return

"Never mind the compliments," my father said, smiling. "Get busy on the copies, both of you. I won't send Reed over here. I'll come back myself as soon as you telephone me that nine copies are ready. And don't forget, Margaret, we have an appointment she doesn't suspect with Ruth Hayes at Hal Meredith's office within the hour. We mustn't be late. But I think you'll have time to help Mary with the copies of the personals. Oh,—how about Ronald and Noel helping. Have you finished your letter to Carolyn, Ronald?"

"Not quite, sir," the boy replied, "but it's almost done."

"Then put it aside for now, and get busy copying these. Your aunt Margaret can dictate, and you three can each do three 'personals.' In that way, they'll be done quickly.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

High Blood Pressure

CORRESPONDENTS often write me for a cure for high blood pressure. There is no such thing as a cure, only a prolonged period of management.

The remedies which have been recommended from time to time include nasturtium, garlic, watermelon seeds and half a hundred others. Whenever you find that many remedies recommended for a condition, you have a pretty good idea that none of them are any good. The old idea of a strict diet with no meat has also been given up as producing no really noticeable results.

There is no use making a person acutely uncomfortable by taking away things that have become a habit with him because the management of a case looks forward to a long pull, even to the end of life, and if the doctor sets too high a standard the patient will not live up to it.

For some reason to which I have not been made privy, most people with high blood pressure are overweight. I do not think the overweight is the cause of high blood pressure because one sees a certain number of quite thin people with good, substantial, booming pressures.

If overweight is present, however, the first step in management is to attempt to reduce it. This does not necessarily lower the blood pressure much, but it is common sense because weight reduction lowers the strain on the heart muscle. Pulling 230 pounds upstairs is more work on the heart than pulling 180 and by just that much, multiplied by the total movements of the day, does weight reduction help.

Early to bed, even if not early to rise, is another rule of management. Ten hours out of the twenty-four in bed, whether one sleeps or not is just so many hours of relaxing instead of tensing all the parts of the circulation. A nap after lunch is also a good rule. If one gets used to it, it will not interfere with the sleep at night.

If not a nap, several periods of complete relaxation a day will do wonders. Lying down with something over the body to keep warm, in a quiet room with no distractions, the muscles relaxe one by one — the neck, face, shoulder girdle, arms and legs. Don't have the radio on and don't try to read.

Drugs have little or no place in the management of high blood pressure. Sedatives may occasionally be needed, but not too often. If the individual is accustomed to a cocktail or highball before dinner, it will do him no harm to continue; in fact, it itself has a relaxing effect.

Tobacco is a somewhat different matter. It causes spasms of the arteries, and is just the opposite to relaxing. If the individual has been in the habit of smoking a good deal it is unwise to take him off altogether, but he should cut down on it.

Long vacations and long weekends are advisable. In fact, this management would be a good plan for nearly everybody over 55, no matter what his blood pressure.

The Stars Say—

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, Sept. 21

THE ASTRAL vibrations ruling on this day are generally deemed as adverse with many tenacious obstacles and difficult situations, best surmounted by persistent, effort, patience and fortitude, backed up by well organized plans and attention to details. It is advisable to "let it alone" as but little encouragement is to be expected from others. The way may be beset with delays, trickery and intrigue, and it might be dangerous to sign papers. Protect the health and that of the family, as well.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year trying and taxing their resources, as there may be delays and disappointments, with stubborn obstacles, depressions and limitations. These may best be surmounted by dogged determination, industry and application, together with well laid plans and policies, and attention to system and detail. It should be a program of individual effort as elders and superiors may not be cooperative or friendly.

A child born on this day should be studious, orderly, and may be aloof and shapeless. It may suffer from duplicity, fraud and intrigue, in both business and personal affiliations.
